

Clearfield Man Leads River Assault in Major Victory

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON—The first river assault force used by the United States since the Civil War has produced a major victory over a Viet Cong battalion in the Mekong Delta, 17 miles south of Saigon.
The new concept combines a river assault flotilla of armored gunboats, troop carriers and a command boat and the second brigade of the U.S. Ninth Infantry Division, which lives in floating barracks on a branch of the Saigon River.
Together, the force, known as the Mobile Riverine force, pushed into a Viet Cong controlled portion of the delta Monday just to the west of the Soirap River, the main shipping channel to Saigon port.

In a battle with a Viet Cong battalion, numbering about 400 men, which erupted Monday and continued into yesterday, the Ninth Division troops and the river assault boat guns killed 169 of the enemy, according to a U.S. command spokesman, while 28 Americans were killed and 126 wounded.
The assault force, designed specifically for river warfare was commissioned as "River Assault Flotilla" on Sept. 1, 1966.
It was the first river assault command formed by the United States since the Mississippi Squadron was disbanded more than 100 years ago, during the American Civil War.

Maj. Clyde J. Tate, 36-years-old, of Fort Vile, Kan., the operations officer of the Second Brigade, Ninth Division, said his troops loaded onto the force's armored troop carriers to begin a routine search and destroy operation along the snaky Rach-hui River, which winds through swamp and flooded rice paddies.
A South Vietnamese unit moved to the south to form a blocking force. They quickly captured a prisoner, the major said, who revealed the presence of the Viet Cong battalion.
"One rifle company was airlifted in," Tate related, "while the river patrol boats moved in to block on the east. The company was heavily engaged with recoilless rifle and automatic weapons fire and we lost contact with it."

Navy Lt. Augustine Marano, 37 years old, of Clearfield, Pa., commander of the river boats, said he picked up radio contact with the company and called in artillery fire and air strikes to help them.
"We pulled our boats into the shore and opened up with all of our guns, the 20 millimeter cannon, 40 and 81 millimeter mortars, .50 caliber machineguns and grenade launchers and

THE NATION

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg proposed that peace in the Middle East be achieved through negotiation with the aid of a third party. Representatives of Arab nations swung the debate back to Soviet Premier Alexsei N. Kosygin's demands that Israel be condemned as an aggressor and directed to withdraw from Arab territory seized in the recent war. Page One.

The United States, employing a river assault force for the first time since the American Civil War, scored a major victory over a Viet Cong battalion in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon. Twenty-eight Americans were killed and 126 wounded, a U.S. command spokesman said. Page One.

Soviets' Policy Stalls LBJ-Kosygin Meeting

BY MAX FRANKEL

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson's efforts to arrange a meeting with Premier Alexsei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union appear to have been stalled by Kosygin's rigid definition of his mission in the United States. Soviet diplomats are said to be adhering to the view that the Premier has come on United Nations business and cannot be diverted from it "at this time." U.S. officials have interpreted this as a lack of interest in a two-nation conference, probably because the Russians wish to overcome Arab suspicions of any Soviet-American collusion against them.

A more positive Soviet interest has not been ruled out here, but time for a meeting was growing short.

Unofficial Soviet sources at the U.N. said Kosygin was eager to meet the President, though only in New York. They suggested that the Soviet leader had already come far from home and that it was in Johnson's interest to make the final gesture. They stressed, perhaps for the benefit of the Arab world, that there was little to be negotiated about the Middle East, but that other problems could profitably be discussed.

With Kosygin spreading the word in New York that he planned to stay only a few more days and with Johnson's calendar for Friday already filling up, the best potential time for a meeting seemed to be Thursday. Some news reports were predicting a Thursday meeting, but White House officials said they knew nothing about it.

A White House spokesman confirmed today that the President had virtually invited Kosygin to select the time and agenda for their meeting, to choose one of several proposed places or by implication, to propose another.

"The President has made it clear," said George Christian the White House press secretary, "that Mr. Kosygin would be welcome here or at Camp David (Md) or some other convenient place nearby for either a social visit or substantive discussions."

"No arrangements have been made," he added.

The President's reluctance to seek a meeting with Kosygin at the General Assembly rests on judgments of policy, not protocol.

The feeling around the White House is that Kosygin has already gone to some lengths to demonstrate single-minded interest in the U.N. and aloofness from the United States. Except for the request for visas and flight clearance to enter New York, the Soviet leader made no effort to inform the President of his journey or to state his intentions. Nor has he given any official

U.S. Calls for Third Party in Talks on Mideast

BY DREW MIDDLETON

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Secretary General Thant said yesterday that Israel's refusal to allow United Nations troops on its side of the armistice line with Egypt had impaired the peacekeeping plan of the General Assembly for this area.

In an unusual statement to the General Assembly, Thant disclosed that before accepting Egypt's demand for withdrawal of the U.N. emergency force on May 18 he had "raised the possibility" with Israel's representatives here of shifting some of these troops to the Israeli side of the line.

"I was told that the idea was completely unacceptable to Israel," Thant said.

The statement was made in reply to Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel, who said Monday that the "disastrously swift" withdrawal of U.N. troops from the Egyptian side of the armistice line helped unleash the Israeli-Arab conflict. It was the first time in four and a half years as Secretary General that Thant had exercised his privilege of replying

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg did not identify the third party when he offered an American draft resolution to the emergency session of the United Nations General Assembly. But American sources said he had the UN in mind.

The draft resolution, which included the five conditions for peace making announced Monday by President Johnson, did not divert Arab and Communist statesmen from their campaign to win the assembly's condemnation of Israel and the withdrawal of its forces from Arab lands.

President Nureddin Al-Atassi of Syria, Premier Jozef Lenhart of Czechoslovakia and Premier Todor Zhilkov of Bulgaria led the attack on Israel.

One claim common to all three speeches seemed fashioned for African and Asian delegations. It was that if Israel, helped by the Americans and British, retained the conquered territories, there would be a new wave of colonialist and imperialist ventures all over the world.

The Soviet Union's primary objective in the debate is the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the United Arab Republic, Syria and Jordan, according to qualified sources. The Soviet delegation argues that withdrawal is vital if aggression is to be forestalled elsewhere in the world.

To achieve this objective, these sources said, the Soviet delegation might be prepared to drop two other demands in the draft resolution submitted Monday by Premier Alexsei N. Kosygin. These call for condemnation of Israeli aggression and reparations by Israel to the Arab states. In addition the Soviet Union might agree to free passage for ships through the Strait of Tiran into the Gulf of Aqaba, Israel's southern port.

Two western delegation heads said they believed that if the Soviet Union amended its draft resolution to a simply demand for the withdrawal of Israeli forces, such a resolution would be approved by the General Assembly.

The Assembly met twice yesterday, from 10:45 a.m. until 1:22 p.m. and from 3:26 p.m. until 5:06 p.m. The Assembly will meet again today at 10:30 a.m.

"The withdrawal of the emergency force is the only way to achieve peace in the Middle East," Thant said.

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Republican-controlled House Ways and Means Committee sent a series of tax bills valued at $238 million to the floor of the House late last evening.

The one tax bill to be defeated in committee was a $29 million increase, from 2 to 6 per cent, in the state inheritance tax. It was reported that four Republicans joined the six committee Democrats in opposing the measure.

SNIPERS IN GEORGIA

This shattered windshield in Atlanta, Ga., is part of the violence that hit that town on Monday. Rock-throwing negroes pelted police, who retaliated with pistols and riot guns. There were some incidents of shooting by snipers, a scene repeated in Alabama early this week.

Three Shot, One Killed, In Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — At least three persons were shot — one fatally — yesterday as violence erupted in a predominantly Negro neighborhood for the fourth straight night.

Spokesmen at Grady Hospital confirmed three persons had been shot and said the victims included a 9-year-old boy and an elderly man.

"The elderly man is dead," the spokesman said.

Sporadic gunfire and rock-throwing broke out in the block-long Dixie Hills shopping center, the scene of a nightly series of disturbances since Saturday.

Police reinforcements were rushed to the area.

Police Supt. J.F. Brown said a ragged volley of gunfire came moments after a gasoline bomb was hurled beside one of the five buildings in the shopping center.

He said most of the shots were fired from among the apartment buildings surrounding the center.

Renewal of the violence came despite efforts of Negro leaders in the community. Earlier in the day they had formed an anti-riot youth corps in an attempt to head off additional trouble.

State Sen. Leroy Johnson, a Negro legislator who represents the middle-class neighborhood, had said it was hoped the young people could "maintain peace and tranquility."

The senator said the system had worked successfully in riotous situations in Tampa, Fla., and Cincinnati.

Members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, after learning about the formation of the youth corps, immediately called a news conference and announced they would regard the youths as "traitors" and "will be dealt with."

Damage Slight In Local Fire

Warren Borough Fire Department was called to 2025 Pennsylvania ave. E. at 10:17 last night to investigate a fire in an apartment occupied by Ronald Ekland.

Neighbors turned in the fire alarm when they smelled smoke coming from the apartment, firemen found that a cloth lying on a gas range was smoking. This apparently was caused by heat from the pilot light.

There was no damage reported, but firemen said there could possibly be minor smoke damage. Ekland was not at home when the incident occurred.

Three units from the department were on the scene for approximately 20 minutes.

Thant

ing existed between President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and the late Dag Hammarskjold, the then Secretary General of the United Nations.

Ernest A. Gross, one-time legal consultant to Hammarskjold, gave to Ralph J. Bunche, Under Secretary for Political Affairs, on May 21 the text of a personal memorandum written by Hammarskjold on Aug. 5, 1957 describing an agreement reached with Nasser.

The memorandum indicates that Hammarskjold obtained a commitment from Nasser that any request to withdraw the emergency force would have to be submitted to the General Assembly.

The UAR has denied knowledge of any such agreement. Thant's press office said yesterday that it could not be found in UN files but the Secretary General did not question the authenticity of the document provided by Gross.

Assault

literally chopped the trees down," the lieutenant said.

"We still could not get at the Viet Cong who were dug in bunkers and strong fortifications. We called in about 2,000 rounds of artillery and air strikes right on top of our own men out there.

"We had no choice. The men out there told us to keep it coming right down on top of them. My mortar rounds were landing 15 yards in front of the troops."

Marano picked up and moved another company south of the Viet Cong, and they too were soon heavily engaged.

The lieutenant said the 16 boats in his command put their bows out to the shore to give them a steady firing platform against the pressure of the current, and kept firing throughout the night.

A spokesman said three helicopters were shot down while giving the embattled troops gunfire support.

After about 12 hours of steady fighting, Tate said, the shooting slackened until daylight this morning, when brief fire-fights broke out again. He said the other troops in the brigade, which had been dropped at some distance from the battle, finally reached the scene and at last report were sweeping the battlefield looking for more Viet Cong.

General Disobeys Order And Saves Lebanon Army

(C) N.Y. Times News Service

The Lebanese Army was saved from the fate of neighboring Arab armies in the recent war with Israel because Gen. Emile Bustani, army commander in chief, refused an order to "open a front" on Lebanon's border with Israel, according to reliable reports reaching New York.

Bustani's refusal caused a bitter quarrel between him and Premier Rashid Karami the night of June 7, the reports say.

Karami summoned the army commander to his house that night and gave him the order to attack to help the hard-pressed Syrians, according to the account by well-informed Lebanese.

The 16,000-man Lebanese Army was divided between the frontier area in the south and the capital, where large units were deemed necessary for security because of Arab nationalist agitation, which, indeed, broke out into rioting on June 10.

Bustani is reported to have told Karami: "When you wear this uniform, you can condemn the army to destruction. But while I wear it, you cannot."

The Premier insisted that his order be obeyed, and, according to the account of the evening's events, Bustani responded by threatening Karami with house arrest.

The quarrel was patched up later that night by President Charles Helou, but Lebanon never opened a front with Israel.

Karami is a Moslem political leader from Tripoli, where his family has an almost feudal importance. Bustani is a Beirut Christian. The president and military commander are always Christians, according to the unwritten constitution, while the Premier is always a Moslem.

Lebanon is about evenly divided between the two faiths.

The three most important Christian political leaders, Pierre Gemayal of the right-wing Phalange party, Pierre Eddy, also a conservative and president of the Bankers' Association, and former president Camille Chamoun have opposed any Lebanese boycott of the United States and Britain.

They also managed to block a break in diplomatic relations with the two countries, which Karami favored.

After a day-long meeting, the cabinet finally reached a compromise . . . a recall of ambassadors, with charges d'affaires remaining as chiefs of mission for Britain and the U.S. in Beirut and for Lebanon in Washington and London.

'Neon Paintings' Zonk the Beholder

By JAN HARTNETT

CHICAGO (AP) — "Whatever experience you get looking at it is what it means," says Ronaldo Ferri of his latest creations—tangles of neon tubing glowing and blinking in multiple colors.

"Easel painting no longer speaks as it once did," said Ferri, whose oils and sculptures have been exhibited in New York and New England. "It is passive. Neon, I feel, is today."

The showcase for Ferri's neon art is a gloomy room in a basement with exposed pipes and peeling paint in a building that once housed the Chez Paree, a night club.

Ferri opened his show Monday night with a champagne toast for more than 600 of the "in people." Starting Tuesday night the "out people" can take a look.

Ferri declared he is not saying anything "deep" with his first collection of blinking works.

"My neon works are meant for homes, corporate offices—anywhere that a painting could be hung or sculpture used and enjoyed," he told a newsman.

"Neon compels the viewer," he said. "You cannot pass by one of my neon paintings without stopping to look."

One of Ferri's creations of glass tubing and electronic gear is designated for audience participation and wired for sound: "The Supremes Singing 'Baby Love.'"

Ferri, 34, a former Air Force navigator, said the work's operation has synchronized the music's beat "in flashing vertical stripes of light to support an upper area where the song's melody swings through the alternating colors in intertwined circles of superimposed tubing."

Jamestown Has Close Primary

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — In an extremely close primary contest yesterday, all six Democratic councilmen-at-large were renominated. The margin between victory and defeat was only 17 votes.

Veteran political observers said last night that the results were the closest in several years.

Leading the winners in yesterday's balloting was Dr. William J. Tracy, who polled 486 votes, was followed by council president John B. Carlson, with 393 votes; Frank Smreker, with 361 votes; John Illig, with 329 votes; Nicholas F. Schepps with 323 votes, and Benjamin Spittale, with 322 votes.

Running very close behind in seventh place was former councilman LaVerne Webeck, with 314 votes, followed by newcomer Jeffrey Nelson, who tallied 312 votes.

Third ward councilman Clyde Cummings, who chose to run at large, polled the fewest number of votes, with 289. Approximately 10 percent of Jamestown's eligible Democrats voted in yesterday's primary election.

The official results of the primary will not be known until a canvass of the voting machines can be made by representatives of the county board of elections. County election commissioner Albert H. Harrison said last night that the official canvass will get under way today. It is possible that because of the closeness of the results the winners of yesterday's voting could change.

18 Die in Aden Burst Of Violence

ADEN (AP) — Eighteen British were killed and 23 wounded here yesterday in a series of gun battles and clashes. It was the bloodiest day's violence since the Egyptian-backed terrorist campaign started in the British protectorate.

The fighting started when British soldiers were called in by federal authorities to help put down a South Arabian federal army disorder.

The number of Arab casualties was not determined. Officials said 17 of the British dead and 22 of the wounded were soldiers. The other two were civilians.

In one attack, eight British soldiers were killed when machine guns sprayed their track, it was announced.

By nightfall the situation was calm, but British families were ordered to stay in their homes until further notice. Many service families already have been evacuated from the protectorate and British forces are scheduled to withdraw in January when the South Arabian Federation becomes independent.

The federation, an association of feudal sheikdoms, is opposed by nationalist organizations. The rival nationalist movements fight among themselves,

ON REAPPORTIONMENT

Bill is Sent Back by Senate

By WILLIAM E. DEIBLER HARRISBURG (AP) — A Senate resolution endorsing the so-called Dirksen Amendment on legislative reapportionment was sent back to the Rules Committee yesterday — probably to die there.

Minority Democrats hailed the action as signifying defeat for the resolution.

However, Sen. Elmer Hawbaker, R-Franklin, a principal sponsor of the resolution, said the recommittal was "just a tactical retreat, not a defeat, for the proposal."

The resolution, part of a nationwide drive, would compel Congress to call a convention to amend the U.S. Constitution to permit one chamber of state legislatures to be apportioned on factors other than population.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in its 1964 "one man-one vote" decision that both legislative chambers must be apportioned solely on population figures.

Senate Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup, R-Bedford, faced with a growing list of defectors in his own party, asked for the recommittal vote.

The roll-call vote was 43-0. Hawbaker left the floor before the vote. Later he promised to speak in support of the resolution next Monday.

Senate Democrats had threatened earlier to call the measure up for a vote. That would have meant certain defeat, since at least six Republicans had made known their opposition to the resolution.

Republicans opposed to the resolution were Clarence D. Bell and Clyde R. Dengler, both of Delaware County; Edwin G. Holl and Wilnot E. Fleming, both of Montgomery County; Frederick H. Hobbs, Schuylkill County; and Richard J. Green, Cambria County.

"I've always been opposed to this resolution," Bell said later. "I believe the 'one man-one vote' rule benefits the suburbs."

Hawbaker said people who support the "one man-one vote" theory are going to be the ones eventually hurt by it.

"The big cities," he said, "where Democratic strength is concerned, and the coal fields are losing population and the Democrats and labor will find to their dismay that the 'one man-one vote' rule will work against their interests."

Sen. William G. Sesler, D-Erie, said he believed it would be unconstitutional to ask people to "deprive themselves of rights which are inherent and inalienable."

"The resolution was so vague to begin with," Sesler said, "that its adoption would have opened a Pandora's box. No one can say what its effects could be. As a matter of fact, none of its proponents has yet said with any measure of clarity just what it meant."

Gov. Shafer had endorsed the resolution during a news conference last March 17.

In other action, the Senate passed, 46-0, and sent to the House a bill that would require that only steel produced in the United States be used in public building projects.

Also passed and sent to the House were bills that would: —Authorize county auditors to organize a state association.

—Increase the amount of tax first-class townships may levy for fire fighting from one to two mills. The measure was passed by the House earlier.

—Authorize first-class townships to spend funds and to enter into insurance contracts for employees, and to deduct premiums from employees' salaries.

—Permit first-class townships to establish water districts and assess the costs of a water system upon such districts.

Gas Line Gets Federal O.K.

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The Federal Power Commission in a unanimous opinion, yesterday authorized the Great Lakes Gas Transmission Company to transport gas from western to eastern Canada across a portion of the North-Central United States.

In granting Great Lakes' application to build a 1,000-mile pipeline for this service and rejecting the competing application to provide a different type of trans-Canada service by the Northern Natural Gas Company, the commission said it was choosing the application that would be of greatest benefit to U.S. gas consumers, as the law under which the commission operates requires.

But it saw no conflict between the needs of Canadian gas users and those of American users. It said the Great Lakes' proposal would serve consumers in both countries better than the competing one.

The low of gas through the pipeline that would cross the United States would be capable of being expanded from the 734 million cubic feet daily presently contemplated to 860 million cubic feet, by additional compression alone.

Cancels Rug Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Secretary of Defense Phil G. Goulding canceled yesterday plans to buy a $3,200 carpet for his suite of offices at the Pentagon.

No reason was given for the change of plans.

U.S. Firms Approve Oil Crisis Plan

WASHINGTON — Major American oil companies approved yesterday a plan designed to overcome a possible world shortage of oil supplies because of the Middle East crisis.

The initial purpose of the plan would be to mobilize a tanker fleet to transport supplies from alternate sources and mainly for Western Europe, which is heavily dependent upon Middle East petroleum.

Approval of the plan is expected later this week by the Department of the Interior and the Office of Emergency Planning. The Justice Department also must approve the plan in order to grant immunity to oil companies from antitrust laws. The oil companies will cooperate in the exchange of information to assure the flow of oil.

Disruption of the Middle East supplies has no effect on the United States at present. More than 85 per cent of the oil consumed in the U.S. is produced domestically. Oil from the Mideast makes up about 3 per cent, and the remainder comes from Venezuela, Canada and the Antilles.

The committee's approval followed the declaration of an oil emergency by the administration last week. The Interior Department noted at that time that the disruption of the Mideast supplies, "particularly of tanker capacity," had created an emergency that "threatens the broad security interests of the United States."

Federal oil officials and representatives of the oil companies expressed hope that the crisis would ease shortly. They saw some hopeful signs, including the resumption of refinery operations in most Arab oil countries and in the loading of tankers. These countries, however, still prohibited the loading of tankers destined for the U.S. and Britain.

FACES CENSURE

Sen. Thomas Dodd faces a vote of censure in the Senate today after more than a week of debate. Some senators are not prone to vote for censure, but not because they side with Dodd. Their reason, as expressed by Sen. Everett Dirksen, is because they still would have to work with him after the censure.

Censure Of Dodd Due Today

BY E.W. KENWORTHY

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The Senate adjourned late yesterday afternoon in a complete stalemate over the plea of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd to vote first on the charge that he double-billed air fares and then on the charge that he diverted political funds to his own use.

In the resolution of censure against the Connecticut Democrat the order of charges is just the reverse, and Senate rules require that the vote on the charges must be in the stated order unless changed by unanimous consent.

Dodd made an impassioned plea for reversal of the voting order on the ground that the double billing charge involved a criminal offense of defrauding the government.

"I ask you in all fairness that if you want to make me a thief," he half-sobbed, "do it today. Do it before the sun goes down and let me steal away ashamed to face you tomorrow."

Then, his voice suddenly shifting to an angry shout, he said: "How many times do you want to hang me? Be done with it. Do away with me! In the twilight of my life! And that will be the end of me!"

Then, his voice sinking again he said: "Give me a night's rest even in sorrow or relief."

Behind this emotional plea, however, was also the skillful parliamentary maneuvering of Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the Democratic whip, who has appointed himself chief defender and floor strategist for Dodd.

Long wants to vote first on the charge that Dodd on seven occasions billed the Senate and a private organization for the same air trip. Dodd has contended that this was not a willful pattern of conduct, as the Ethics Committee charged in recommending censure, but the fault of sloppy bookkeeping by his former office manager, Michael V. O'Hare.

Many senators regard this as a much less serious offense than the charge of diverting $116,083 to personal use out of $450,273 received from testimonial dinners and campaign contributions.

It is believed that Long's strategy—indeed his only hope of averting or softening censure—is to defeat the double-billing charge and then to offer a series of softening amendments over the next two or three days on the charge of diverting political funds to personal use.

IN HARRISBURG

Tax Bill Logjam Begins to Break

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI HARRISBURG (AP) — The logjam began to break yesterday on Gov. Shafer's $267 million tax package, but the Republican party still was confronted with the formidable task of rounding up the necessary votes to pass it.

The GOP-controlled House Ways and Means Committee gave initial approval to 10 tax measures valued at $212.9 million.

The House then recessed for a late dinner before the committee came back to reconsider three remaining bills in the package—a 1-cent tax on 12-ounce soft drinks, worth $25 million; an increase from 2 to 6 per cent in the inheritance tax, $29 million; and a measure to close a loophole in corporate taxes paid by out-of-state firms, $400,000.

The committee, at a one-hour meeting in the afternoon, originally tabled action on the three measures. Shafer, however, after repeated meetings with the leadership, succeeded in persuading the committee to reconsider the bills.

The committee earlier had approved these proposals: —A nickel jump, to 13 cents, in the cigarette tax, $66 million.

—An increase from 6 to 7 per cent in the corporate net income tax, $59.5 million.

—A three per cent hike, from 15 to 18 per cent, in the state liquor tax, $9.6 million.

—A 50 per cent increase on the beer tax, $10.5 million.

—An increase in the utilities gross receipts tax, from 14 to 20 mills, $22.1 million.

—Permanent retention of the temporary 1-cent cigarette tax for the Korean veteran's bonus, $13.2 million.

—An increase from 5 to 6 mills, in the capital stock and franchise tax, $24 million.

—Three bills proposing a 25 per cent increase in taxes on banks and savings institutions, $8 million.

GOP Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson, after a 3½-hour caucus on his members, acknowledged that there was still much ground to be crossed before he had the necessary 102 votes for the tax program.

"We have a long way to go, but we always have (had), at the outset," he commented.

The Republican ranks, which numbered 104 when the session began last January, have been trimmed to 99 at this point by two deaths and three illnesses.

The problem appeared no more encouraging in the Senate, where the GOP also has but a bare constitutional majority of 26.

House Minority Democrats, meanwhile, repeated their demand that Shafer confer with them to resolve the true tax needs of the commonwealth before they would lend any votes to the revenue raising proposals.

Minority Leader Herbert Fineman reiterated his charge, in a lengthy floor speech prior to the dinner recess, that Shafer had overstated his tax demands by $220 million.

Another $35 million could be cut from the budget, while another $40 million is available in unspent funds if the governor wanted truly to economize on spending, Fineman insisted.

In other developments: Dirksen—The Senate returned to committee a resolution calling on Congress to adopt a constitutional amendment to circumvent the U.S. Supreme Court's historic one-man, one-vote reapportionment decision. The action came after five Republicans let it be known that they were opposed to the so-called Dirksen Amendment. Democrats said the action meant the death of the resolution.

Sabbatarian—The Senate Judiciary Committee released a bill which would permit Jews and other religious groups who observe a day other than Sunday as their Sabbath to do business on Sunday if they close for their day of worship.

Apologize for Strafing Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally expressed regret Tuesday for damage to the Soviet cargo ship Turkistan off the North Vietnam port of Cam Pha. The government gave assurances to Soviet authorities that every effort will be made "to insure that such incidents do not occur."

The United States first denied Soviet charges that U.S. planes had damaged the vessel, but agreed Sunday that they may have strayed the 3,358-ton vessel June 2. New information disclosed a third flight of planes, not previously reported, was in the area, the Defense Department said.

The State Department made public the text of a note sent to the Soviet Embassy yesterday.

Oil City Woman Killed in Crash

ROCHESTER CITY, Mich. (AP)—A Pennsylvania woman was killed in a one-car accident eight miles north of Rogers City yesterday. Police said Mrs. Hazel Allebach, 59, of Oil City, Pa., died when her car ran off U.S. 23 and rolled over.

LBJ Asks for Rail Bill Suggestions

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — President Johnson yesterday suggested that Congress come forward with its own proposals for emergency strike legislation if it was displeased with his failure to propose a bill.

The idea was relayed to capital hill through Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, after the President expressed his views on the subject at a White House legislative conference.

Mansfield said that the President would be pleased to have Congress consider permanent legislation for resolving emergency labor disputes. But Mansfield made it clear that Johnson had no proposals of his own to make.

The president's statement thus amounted to a challenge to congressional critics, who have assailed him for not proposing a bill, to come up with their own solution if they can.

But White House sources expressed doubt that Congress would be able to shape an acceptable proposal when the President's advisers had failed.

"I think the president would be very pleased if the labor committees of both houses would take up the question of labor legislation he referred to in his State of the Union message a couple of years ago," Mansfield said.

"He has endeavored to try to find a formula, but so far has not been able to achieve much," the Senator added. "He would not be averse to the labor committees starting considerations of proposals they think applicable."

Another congressional source said that the President had discussed at yesterday morning's meeting the possibility of sending to Congress a letter suggesting that hearings be held on the several permanent strike bills already introduced.

Nixon is Front-Runner

Election day 1968 is beginning to cast its shadow across the political landscape. Unless he chooses not to run for some presently unforeseen reason, President Johnson will be the Democratic standard bearer. Granting that it will not be easy, Republican strategists generally believe that President Johnson can be defeated in 1968, and because of this the Republican presidential nomination promises to be a hotly pursued political plum. Opinion polls taken just before convention time will strongly influence the final choice.

At the present moment, Mr. Nixon is front-runner for the nomination. This is the opinion of Republican leaders in all 50 states polled in a recent U. S. News & World report telephone survey. Mr. Romney is considered the most likely second choice. According to U. S. News, "Many top party people expect the Republican National Convention to turn into a head-on struggle between the forces of Mr. Nixon and those of Mr. Romney. If neither of these men gets a majority of the 1,333 delegates, the final choice could come from among half a dozen others, including 'favorite son' candidates."

Among these will be Governor Rockefeller of New York, Senator Charles Percy, the new senator from Illinois, Ronald Reagan, governor of California, now the nation's most populous state, and James Rhodes, governor of Ohio, who has proven his campaigning ability by impressive election victories in his own state. It is generally felt that if Mr. Nixon is to win the nomination he must do so in the early stages of the convention. Although most Republicans consider him the most qualified, he carries with him the burden of having lost the presidential race in 1960 and the governorship of California in 1962. According to the U. S. News survey, Nixon is the betting choice of party officials in 25 states with 610 convention votes, but his commanding lead could quickly melt away if repeated balloting should give time for doubt of his winning ability to develop among delegates on the convention floor. If this should happen, Governor Romney is now expected to be next in line. His campaign organization will be devoted to establishing him as a national figure of decisive character with the force to carry a national election. But, some feel he is starting too early and so far there has not been the kind of enthusiasm toward Governor Romney that will be needed.

For the time being, Governor Romney has the whole-hearted support of Governor Rockefeller, whose vast personal resources and contacts combined with his experience as governor of New York, make him one of the most knowledgeable and influential figures on the Republican political scene. He has stated unequivocally that he is not in contention for the nomination, but the pressures on him to reconsider will be great as the convention deadline nears. At this stage, neither Senator Charles Percy nor Ohio's Governor Rhodes are well enough known on the national scene to appear likely as contenders for the top position on the ticket, but this can change in the months ahead, and Senator Percy does have one advantage at present over any of the top-running contenders — he has no established powerful political enemies. Governor Reagan's meteoric rise in California, undimmed by several months in office, makes him a growing force of as yet undetermined proportions. Although the Eastern Wing of the Republican party apparently considers his nomination impossible, Newsweek magazine estimates that, "Reagan, merely by making himself slightly available, could pick up as many as 300 delegates, almost entirely at Nixon's expense." As California's favorite son, he is assured of another 86.

The fascinating business of American politics is getting into full swing once again. As Newsweek observes, "For Republicans, 1968 is not just a presidential year, it is the big year — the year they expect to elect a President." Every effort will be made to pick a winning combination with a positive approach to the nation's issues and problems and with less emphasis on philosophical dogma. The names of the presidential candidate and his running mate will probably not be known until the final count is in on the last of many roll-call votes.

TOM WICKER

Democracy or Something

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The great expectations of the Johnson administration for quick and beneficial development of elected government in South Vietnam may have been premature. Like so many other aspects of the situation in that tortured country, the forthcoming elections are simply not going according to plan.

In the first place, the two ranking figures in the present military government, Nguyen Cao Ky and Nguyen Van Thieu, are running against each other for president. This raises the dangerous possibility of a split in the military, otherwise the most unified non-Communist force in South Vietnam.

Such a split could result in a civilian president, probably the respected Tran Van Huong, which might be good; but it also could result in a disgruntled military which would not really support Huong, which probably would be bad.

In the second place, perhaps because Thieu's unexpected candidacy threatens his own, Premier Ky is taking considerable advantage of his position as head of the military government. So far, he has raised civil service wages, plastered the countryside with government-financed posters praising his own works, instructed his press censors to allow no criticism of the government, and availed himself of government helicopters and radio stations for his campaigning — all before the law permits the campaign to begin. How much he may also use for his political purposes the police, which he controls, the armed forces, a good part of which he influences, and the pacification workers, is a question of gloomy gossip in Saigon.

Ky also has suggested that he would not acquiesce in the election of a civilian president who wanted to seek a settlement of the war. "If he is a Communist or if he is a neutralist, I am going to fight him militarily," Ky said. "In any democratic country you have the right to disagree with the views of others."

This is a peculiar view of democracy, but Ky's threat probably is less serious in the sense that he might act upon it than it is as a damper upon campaign debate. Taken with his control of the censors, it virtually assures that peace proposals, or even the question of negotiations with the Viet Cong or Hanoi, will not be raised publicly. Yet, this surely is one issue upon which the South Vietnamese people ought to be heard.

All this has posed a new dilemma for the administration. What is desired, American officials say, is a freely elected government and whether it is civilian or military is less important than that it be popularly chosen and therefore able to unify and govern the country. Moreover, the policy of the Johnson administration is based on the notion that South Vietnam is a free and independent country victimized by aggression and subversion from without. If that is the case, then South Vietnam's elections are her own affair in which Americans have no right to meddle. The likelihood is, however, that if Ky continues to rig the election process so obviously in his own favor, and to his own specification of what is democracy and what is not, the "free elections" will scarcely constitute the political and propaganda triumph for which the administration had hoped; and so much less will they result in a truly representative government for South Vietnam.

If, on the other hand, an able civilian like Huong wins only because the military is divided and quarreling, the resulting government will be in a precarious position. The political process in South Vietnam has been so stunted in 20 years of war and devastation that no civilian rule is likely to survive without strong military backing.

American pressures might cause Ky to moderate his campaign tactics or, if a civilian were elected, American power might shield him from the South Vietnamese military. Neither course, however, is likely to produce what is really needed, which is a government both strong and popular — strong enough to unify non-Communist elements in South Vietnam, popular enough to suggest to the more moderate Viet Cong — particularly southerners — that it could provide a regime worthy of dealing with rather than subverting.

As the campaign Ky has launched makes clear, that kind of government in South Vietnam probably is years away. The United States not only has little power to speed its coming but to the extent that it actually keeps hands off this year's elections, it probably will enable Ky to capitalize on his advantages and cement his rule. Once again, therefore, it seems that the only thing this country can do for the South Vietnamese that they cannot or will not do for themselves is to fight. It is a dubious privilege.

Chinese White Rhinoceros

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — What is astonishing about Chinese production of the H-bomb is not that the Chinese have been able to build one but that they have felt they ought to. For a nation already armed with the thought of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, nothing would seem a more wasteful use of resources.

A country with an H-bomb is like a family with a rhinoceros. There is nothing you can do with it but go bankrupt trying to support it and lie awake nights worrying that it may break out of the garage and tear up all the flower beds in the neighborhood.

A rich family may be able to afford the luxury of a rhinoceros, but for a country like China, which still cannot manage to feed its people, to fritter away its wherewithal on H-bombs is a sad case of mismanagement.

The absurdity of the Chinese H-bomb is heightened by a pledge published in Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency, "that at no time and in no circumstances will China be the first to use nuclear weapons." What kind of nonsense is this?

The main purpose of having an H-bomb is to possess the ability to blow the world apart. There are already enough H-bombs in the arsenals of other nations to do the job several times over. Thus, if China waits until other bomb owners let go with theirs first, the job will almost surely be over before the Chinese can make a contribution.

Obviously, if the Chinese are not going to go first, they are pouring their money down a plutonium hole. Chairman Mao seems to have sensed that his thought on this point is vulnerable to criticism, for Hsinhua's statement about the new H-bomb tries to justify it on ground that it will make people feel good.

The Chinese H-bomb, says the statement, "is a very great encouragement" to the North Vietnamese and the Arabs. This is ridiculous. The Soviet Union, with the world's second-biggest stock of H-bombs, and the United States, with the world's biggest, have demonstrated that nuclear allies are the most discouraging of all.

The problem about H-bombs is that when you have a few, you become so terrified of their going off that you are very little good to anybody. The Arabs have just discovered this in the case of their Soviet friends, and the United States has been demonstrating it to the South Vietnamese for years.

In fact, then, it will be extremely discouraging to the North Vietnamese and the Arabs to see their Chinese friends enter thermonuclear society.

Surely the Chinese knew all this — knew that the H-bombs would turn them into timid allies, knew that it would not contribute a little or a jot to the ultimate holocaust, if it comes. Why, then, did they build it? In all likelihood, because they considered the H-bomb the key to membership in the exclusive thermonuclear club. They wanted to have President de Gaulle treat them as equals.

The thermonuclear club, however, counts for very little any longer. Like all clubs, it has gone downhill rapidly since the world learned that anybody with enough money could buy his way in. Britain's membership was not worth enough to gain it entrance into the Common Market, and India is so contemptuous of it that she announced recently that she would not even bother to build nuclear weapons, though she was perfectly capable of doing so.

The Chinese have miscalculated. They have bought a white rhinoceros. All indications suggest that the H-bomb is, in fact, obsolete, or if not, at least about to become so.

It may be, of course, that the Chinese are not telling the truth when they promise not to use their bomb first. They may think that they are cunningly lulling the rest of us to sleep, so that they will be able to sneak in the first blast and get the lion's share of the credit for blowing the world apart.

This would merely demonstrate how far behind the times Chairman Mao's thought is, for already in the secret laboratories of the inscrutable west Scientists are at work on the truly ultimate weapon, the hush-hush RSQ-bomb.

The letters RSQ stand for restoring the status quo, and they explain precisely what the RSQ-bomb would do. After the H-bomb has blown everything in the world apart, the RSQ-bomb would blow it all back together again.

Had the Chinese applied their genius to developing the RSQ-bomb, they might really have given Russia and the West something to worry about; to wit, the inevitability of a China forever dominated by the thought of Chairman Mao.

Uncensored News Tells How

WASHINGTON — Tight Israeli censorship suppressed some of the hottest news regarding the Near East war. However, this column can now reveal some of the facts leading to Israel's amazing victory.

The Israelis caught Nasser by surprise first by giving 100,000 of their reserve troops the weekend off just before the June 5 attack. As a result the streets of Beersheba, Tel Aviv and Jerusalem were full of soldiers, and Nasser's intelligence reported that Israel was relaxing.

In addition, Gen. Moshe Dayan, the new Israeli minister of defense, made a public statement that it was either too early or too late to begin any offensive. This was interpreted in Cairo to mean that Israel would probably attack on the following weekend.

When the war first started, the Israelis telephoned King Hussein in Amman through Gen. Odd Bull, Norwegian commander of the United Nations forces. They used the "hot line" which has always been maintained between Jerusalem and Amman, to tell the king that if Jordan stayed out of the war he and his country would be immune from attack.

King Hussein then called in his staff officers. Three of them laid their guns on his desk and told him: "If you won't let us fight, kill us."

This was how Jordan entered the battle. The Israeli air force completely confused the Jordanian radar, which was located in a valley behind a 2,000-foot hill. Israelis knew that the radar could detect planes flying at about 5,000 feet. So the Israeli air force took off as if going out over the Mediterranean, then made a sharp turn and came back over Jordan, flying at a height of only 900 feet. At this altitude they were undetected by Jordan's radar.

The Israelis also used a secret device to paralyze the Egyptian radar.

There has been speculation as to why Nasser did not use the rockets devised for him by the former Nazi scientists imported from Germany. The secret explanation was that the Israelis at the very start of the war sent him a message warning that if he used rockets they would retaliate three ways:

1. They would bomb Cairo and destroy its palaces and government buildings;
2. They would blow up the Aswan Dam;
3. They would make the Nile radioactive.

Nasser got the message. The Nazi-made rockets were not used.

At the start of the war, President de Gaulle shut off all arms to Israel; whereupon the lead-

Local School Tax Bill

HARRISBURG — When you receive your new local school tax bill, take a good look at it — it should prove most interesting, particularly if compared with the past few years.

The millage rate should be up — and if it isn't, go out and buy yourself a hat (or a new car) and congratulate yourself; your district by far is the exception rather than the rule in the Keystone State these days!

Of course the hue and cry today centers around the contention that everything is going up these days — increased cost of living, inflation, and all that sort of thing. Fundamentally this is perhaps a truism, and to some degree it accounts for your local school tax increase — but in the case of education it isn't the main reason.

The simple fact is that since 1959 local school districts in most instances have found themselves faced with the inescapable fact that if they were going to meet budgetary requirements, local school taxes had no alternative other than to go — up.

Since then the load — that is, the local load — has become ing French airplane manufacturers, including Aviation du Nord and Aviation du Sud, came to see him and warned that if he wanted to finish the French air force, this was the best way to do it. Seventy per cent of the Israeli air force, De Gaulle was told, were French Mysteres. De Gaulle listened, released 10 more Mysteres to Israel.

In Syria, the Israelis captured five Russians and one Bulgarian woman. All six were directing Syrian artillery fire.

The amount of weapons captured by the Israeli army is nothing short of phenomenal. And even more phenomenal is the manner in which some of them were put to immediate use. In Jordan, the Israelis captured 40 Patton tanks, and within one hour had turned them around and were firing on Jordanian troops.

Inflation, in short, is "choosy" in how it attacks the various items which make up our cost of living. And behind inflation's selectivity are fundamental, powerful forces.

Most significant is the relentless increase in the cost of services year after year, an increase which has dwarfed the rise in the cost of goods.

Our demand for services of all kinds is expanding without interruption. Meanwhile, the cost of the services is being pushed up by rising wages and materials prices in all major categories of services.

One single comparison dramatizes this point. The $1 you spent for things in 1957-59 still will buy you 91 cents of things today. But the $1 you spent a decade ago for medical care services, haircuts, auto repairs, mortgages and other services will buy you only 71 cents of the same non-things now.

The prices of goods generally have been rising too, under the pressures of higher demand, higher wages, higher material costs. However, the increases here have been tempered by rapid improvements in the productivity of workers in fields producing goods, spectacular advances in the efficiency of factories and machines, intense competition among makers and sellers of goods. In many services these factors have had little effect.

Although comparatively speaking, "things" today are a much bigger bargain than "non-things," there also are sharp differences within this category too, meaning between price trends of durable goods and of non-durable goods.

Again, one single comparison will tell the tale: the $1 you spent a decade ago for clothes will buy 88 cents of clothes today, while the $1 you spent for electrical appliances and other "household durables" will actually purchase $1.02 worth of these items today.

This glance behind the overall decline in your dollar's value may give you scant consolation as you try to make a penny do a nickel's work. But at least it's a guide to what type of dollar has lost the most pennies and why.

The increase is fine — as far as it goes, but the big question in the minds of many schoolmen (and lawmakers) is whether it goes far enough; whether it is being projected on a firm basis. For example, using part of a state surplus is one thing — good for the moment — but what happens when there isn't a surplus and the "temporary" increase in state aid (which inevitably becomes viewed as permanent with plans made accordingly) isn't in the woods?

That's when fiscal difficulties really begin to mount on the local front!

In too many instances throughout Pennsylvania, local dis-

A Dollar Is Many Things

The $1 which bought you 100 cents worth of goods and services one decade ago will buy you only 87 cents worth of the same goods and services today — a loss in value of 13 cents in just 10 years.

This is the overall measure of what price rises in this period have done to the purchasing power of your earnings. But this is far from the whole story. You don't spend one single dollar for one fixed marketbasket of things and non-things. You spend many dollars for many different marketbaskets, and there is a spectacular variation in how much each of your dollars buys in comparison with 10 years ago.

For instance, the $1 you budgeted a decade ago for the purchase of food to eat at home now buys you 90 cents worth of food. But the $1 which went for your restaurant meals in the 1957-59 base period will now buy you only 78 cents worth of food from a menu. The cost of eating out has climbed much faster than the cost of eating in.

The $1 you put aside in 1957-59 for furniture still will buy you a full 99 cents-plus of furniture today. But the $1 you put aside for mortgage payments, taxes, insurance, repairs and other homeownership costs will now cover only 84 cents worth of these costs. The rise in the price of furniture has been picayune against the rise in other vital costs involved in owning a home.

Again, the $1 you spend to buy and maintain your car 10 years ago will pay for 88 cents of these costs now. But the $1 you spent during the earlier period for bus fares, subway tokens and other forms of public transportation is now worth only 77 cents. The costs of owning a car have risen much more slowly than the costs of traveling by other means.

Inflation, in short, is "choosy" in how it attacks the various items which make up our cost of living. And behind inflation's selectivity are fundamental, powerful forces.

Liberty Inquiry Continues

TEL AVIV Israel (AP)—An inquiry into the Israeli attack on the U.S. Navy communications ship Liberty has advanced a step closer toward a possible court-martial, the military spokesman's office announced yesterday.

The announcement said the military advocate, Col. Myer Shamgar, had received a report from a court of inquiry and had ordered a "preliminary judicial inquiry" by an officer empowered to order courts-martial.

There was no mention of the contents of the report by the court of inquiry, which had been appointed by the chief of staff, Gen. Yitzhak Rabin.

The Liberty was hit June 8 in the Mediterranean 15 miles off the Israeli coast. Air and torpedo-boat attacks took 34 American lives.

Israeli officials say the attack was accidental. But when the Liberty reached Malta, a responsible U.S. source said American crewmen were convinced the attack was deliberate because the Israeli torpedo boats and planes had ample time to identify the Liberty.

The military announcement on the inquiry into the "tragic incident" said that Shamgar, "after examining the evidence, has decided on the holding of a preliminary judicial inquiry by a military, legally qualified judge who is empowered by law to decide on the commitment for trial of any person."

Lt. Col. Yishaya Yerushalmi, a judge of the appeal court-martial, was named to conduct the judicial investigation. There was no indication when he expected to complete it.

Soviets to Give Arabs More Arms

By PETER GROSE
(C) N.Y. Times News Service MOSCOW — President Nikolai V. Podgorny, the Soviet chief of state, left hurriedly yesterday by plane for Cairo for talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Podgorny is reported to have been accompanied by Marshal Matvei V. Zakharov, a first deputy defense minister and chief of the general staff, but this could not be confirmed here last night.

The departure of Podgorny came shortly after a meeting of the Communist Party's policy-making central committee that discussed the Middle East crisis, the East situation by Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party.

The latest move to bolster Moscow's show of support of the Arab nations in their conflict with Israel followed a speech by Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin at the year's celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Podgorny is reported planning to stop in Belgrade for talks with President Tito, who strongly supports the Soviet bloc position on the Israeli-Arab conflict.

The reported trip by Marshal Zakharov to Cairo was interpreted here as a study mission linked to apparent Soviet intentions of rebuilding the Arab armies. Hundreds of Soviet-supplied jet aircraft, tanks, trucks and other equipment were destroyed or captured by the Israeli forces.

The purpose of Podgorny's trip could not be confirmed here last night.

EXPERTS THINK SO

Chinese Missiles Carried Bomb?

By KAY TATEISHI
TOKYO (AP)—Red China may have fired its first hydrogen bomb by missile and detonated it at an altitude of from 18 to 31 miles, Japanese scientists and defense officials speculated yesterday.

If this is correct, it would be a shock to both the West and the Soviet bloc because it would mean Red China had produced a hydrogen bomb small enough to be lofted by a missile.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said its data indicated the Chinese had tested "far below the figures quoted by the Japanese." Since Red China has missiles, defense experts said it would be simple to fire a hydrogen bomb into the stratosphere if it had been tooled to size of a nuclear warhead.

Dr. Tetsuo Kamada, assistant professor at Nagoya University, estimated the blast Saturday took place somewhere in the stratosphere. He added that others had calculated the altitude at between 18 and 31 miles. The stratosphere begins at an altitude of about seven miles.

Informants quoted scientists at the government's telecommunications Ministry as saying that an atomic detonation at high altitudes creates electromagnetic waves and disturbs the ionosphere 100 to 200 miles up. The ionosphere reflects radio waves back to earth.

The ionosphere ordinarily is disturbed only by sunspot activity and extraordinary atmospheric conditions. But Kamada said there were no such natural disturbances Saturday.

Kamada reported the university's very long frequency oscillograph had recorded a disturbance of the sort that interrupts radio communication at 7-24 a.m. Saturday. It lasted for 30 minutes.

Scientists at the ministry's observation posts said the only similar communications-disturbing waves followed high-altitude hydrogen bomb explosions by the Soviet Union at Novaya Zemlya Island in the Arctic.

U.N. Debate May Give Needed Time

(C) N.Y. Times News Service UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The outlook now is for a long and increasingly boring debate at the United Nations on the Middle East crisis, and this may be precisely what is needed to give everybody time to adjust to the new realities in that part of the world.

Neither the Soviet Union nor the United States has the votes in the General Assembly to win a two-thirds majority for their resolutions, and even if they did, these would merely be "recommendations" for action which Israel or the Arabs would undoubtedly ignore.

All the talk will not restore the balance of power that existed before the war. The Israelis have smashed the Arab military machine into a junk-heap of miscellaneous wheels, most of them square. Not until the Israelis and the Arabs, the Russians and the Americans stare at this wreckage for a while will they begin to think anew about the consequences of the conflict.

Soviet Prime Minister Kosygin has been very generous in his verbal support of the Arab states in the United Nations this week, but it may take much more time and energy for him to persuade his colleagues in the Soviet Council of Ministers to invest another $4 billion in the military genius of President Nasser.

For the present, Kosygin is being distinctly hostile to Washington's proposals for a reconciliation between Israel and the Arab states, but after he ponders the cost of replacing the Arab air and tank power lost in the desert, he might just conclude that it was cheaper and more sensible to cool the arms race and enter into a political and military accommodation.

The Arabs are angry, humiliated and probably irrevocable, but even they cannot live on hot words alone. They are now deprived of their Suez Canal tolls, and they have cut themselves off from some of their oil markets in Western Europe, where the Soviets are now looking for new business.

And even the poor and hungry people in the Arab world may not be wildly enthusiastic in the future about financing new armed services at the expense of minimal social services.

It will take time, too, to discover the political consequences of the Arab defeat. A lot of the sawdust has run out of Colonel Nasser in recent days. He has got rid of his top military sidekicks, and they have disappeared rather quietly.

ly, but unemployed generals do not always love politicians who lead them to disaster, so that chapter may not be over yet.

Even the Israelis may become more resilient with the passage of time. They have secured their borders and opened up their watery back door to Asia and Africa, but they have tripled their geographic holdings, most of it in desert, and taken on more refugees than they can swallow, and all this means keeping men and women in the armed services they need for their not too stable economy.

It is too early yet, however, for these practical questions to dominate policy. The Arabs are still too stunned, the Israelis still too exuberant, and the Russians still too angry to forget the past and cooperate for the future, and the debate here, while it uses up time, also poisons the atmosphere.

This is particularly true of the relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. Things were bad enough as a result of the Vietnam war, but now Kosygin has come here and dramatized Moscow's role as the arsenal of both North Vietnam and the Arabs, with various offensive and inflammatory comments about Israel on the side.

Accordingly, unless President Johnson and Kosygin can ease the tension in private talks, anti-Soviet opinion in the United States is likely to grow and minimize the President's hopes for limited agreements on East-West trade, and arms control.

They are too far apart for the moment to make much progress on the Middle East, Moscow is too worried about Peking to reach new accommodations now with Washington, and too committed to the Arabs to be reasonable about Israel.

In time, however, the new facts of the situation may induce a more practical approach. That, at least, seems to be the main hope of thoughtful delegates at the United Nations.

WHAT OTHERS SAY . . .

Wheels of Justice Grind Slow

When a U.S. Claims Court last week ruled that Florida's Seminole Indians do, indeed, own 32 million acres of Florida and must be paid for it, the court helped erase a fraction of the worst blot on the history of these United States.

The decision could cost the United States $40 million.

We say pay it!

For, if we pay it, we can make some measure of atonement for the shoddy treatment of the Seminoles in 1823 when we got Florida from Spain and promptly corralled the Seminoles and forced them to occupy a four-million-acre reservation. They had roamed and hunted and fished the entire length and breadth of what is now Florida.

Later, the United States compounded the brutal project by attempting to ship the Seminoles to an Oklahoma reservation.

And while we're on the subject, wouldn't the North American Indians own the vast bulk of what is now the United States?

And by the same right under which the Seminoles owned most of Florida.

You can liken the case of the ousted Seminoles in the pages of our history books to the recently ousted Senecas who were shunted off their tribal ground to make way for the Kinzua Dam, breaking the first treaty ever negotiated by the United States.

Even the bones of the revered Chief Cornplanter gave way to the giant dam.

But it was the treaty coming unglued which disturbs thinking Americans most.

Come treaty-breaking time, all the old shibboleths such as "a man's home is his castle" are promptly swept under the rug of progress and out of the conscience of the nation.

So, to the descendants of the 1,300 Seminoles who fled to Florida's Everglades when these United States shipped their brethren to Oklahoma along with a great mob of Negroes, we say, more power to you and we hope you get and occupy every acre the court has said you own.

Never mind the $40 million.

Get the land back. It's yours.

The $40 million and more will come along later through the natural turn of events.

South Carolina, the militant chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said sharply, "Nothing's too strong for them."

James A. Haley, D-Fla., suggested an alternate penalty: take flag burners 200 miles out to sea, tie stones around their necks and dump them overboard.

"Then tell 'em to swim to some country whose flag they respect," Haley snapped.

"A flag burner," said Maston O'Neal, D-Ga., "is an enemy of this country and should be treated as an enemy."

Hearing Set On Shipping Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has set a hearing for 10 a.m. tomorrow on an appeal filed yesterday by the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots, AFL-CIO, of a federal court ruling ordering its members back to work in a strike affecting ships in Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports.

The ruling, handed down late Monday by U.S. Dist. Court Judge John P. Fullan, called for the dock officers union to return to work by midnight Wednesday and resume arbitration with shipping firms or face imposition of damages of at least $250,000.

The judge said the damage award would be canceled if the union returns to arbitration by today, and if the striking dock officers return to work until the dispute is settled.

Fullan acted after an attorney for three shipowner groups said losses because of the walk-out total $7,300 hourly, with damages so far amounting to $1.5 million.

Some seven ships are reported tied up by the strike that began seven days ago. The union is seeking pay increases recently granted other maritime unions.

Bonus Assumed For Yank Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Blomberg, the No. 1 pick of the New York Yankees in the recent free agent baseball draft, apparently has been signed for a big bonus by the American League club. Blomberg, a 6-foot-1, 185-pound schoolboy first baseman from Druid Hills High in Atlanta, Ga. Impressed most of the pro scouts with his long range power. The 18-year-old slugger is a left-handed batter but throws right-handed.

Clay Guilty, Receives Five Years Ex-Champ Gets Maximum Penalty, Appeal Planned

FREEDOM IN JEOPARDY

Clay will appeal the five year sentence and fine imposed for his refusal to enter the military.

THREATENED WITH $10 MILLION LAWSUIT

Warrior Ace Rick Barry Jumps to New Cage Loop

By CHARLES McMURTRY Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Rick Barry, sensational scoring champion of the National Basketball Association, jumped to the new American Basketball Association yesterday and drew the threat of a $10 million lawsuit.

Rick, an NBA All-Star who led the San Francisco Warriors to the Western Division championship, told a sports conference he signed a "very lucrative contract" with Oakland, coached by his father-in-law, Bruce Hale.

Half a million dollars for three years, including possibly a share in the Oakland franchise, was the lure speculated on by most sports writers.

Rick himself refused time and again to give any detail whatsoever—except to say no film or television clauses are included.

There had been reports for weeks that the major Oakland owner, singer-motor Pat Boone, included such fringe benefits in his offer.

Chicago's 'No Neck' No Play No 21 Days

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Walt Williams is the best thing that's happened to the Chicago White Sox since Minnie Minoso. He's added color and flavor to a club that can use it.

That's why the Sox, currently holding the lead for the American League pennant, were a little bit sad yesterday. Williams—the delightful little rookie outfielder with the boundless enthusiasm and the quick, natural wit—is on the disabled list for 21 days.

He has a hairline fracture above his left wrist. He was hit by a Fred Talbot pitch in Sunday's second game with the New York Yankees.

Over the last 12 games, Williams batted .365 and had a reached-base percentage of .411.

There is NO player in baseball who looks like Williams, and few, if any, with his gushing aggressiveness. He has fireplug proportions, standing 5-foot-6 and weighing 195 pounds.

He has been given the rather cruel nickname of "No Neck," which he seldom draws a walk because of his impatience to hit. This weakness, however, may really be his strength. He's up there swinging at anything in reach instead of "taking" like so many do. He seems to resent a base on balls.

In Boston recently, Red Sox Manager Dick Williams said that No Neck pulled the greatest hustling play he had ever seen. Boston's Jose Tartabull singled to right to drive Lee Stange in from second base. Williams' throw to the plate was cut off by Tom McCraw, who began a rundown of Tartabull, who had to take second. Ron Hansen's return throw got past McCraw and sailed toward the Boston dugout.

If the ball had gone into the dugout, Tartabull would have gotten an extra base. The ball was only about three feet from it when Williams sped in from right field and made a diving stop of it. He leaped to his feet, fired to Hansen and Tartabull was out going into second base.

"I don't ever remember an outfielder coming in to intercept a throw at the dugout," said the Boston skipper.

and signed Barry; father-in-law Hale keeping in the background.

Barry, 23, who won All-American honors at the University of Miami under Hale's coaching, averaged 35.6 points a game for the Warriors last season, his second in the NBA. He was voted the outstanding player in the league's All-Star game.

In the 1965-66 campaign, he was named Rookie-of-the-Year and also named to the NBA All-star team.

Warrior owner Franklin Mieuli, expressing amazement at Barry's defection, said that move would topple "the very structure of professional sports."

Mieuli declared, "obviously, there will be a big suit filed against Barry, the Oakland club and the rival league."

Mieuli already has filed a $1 million suit against the ABA, its New Orleans club and Clyde Lee, reserve forward who jumped from the Warriors to New Orleans.

How much would Mieuli ask in suing Barry and Oakland? "We'll have to work it out," he said. "But if a fourth forward

"I don't ever remember an outfielder coming in to intercept a throw at the dugout," said the Boston skipper.

Top Choice Signed By Grid Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League announced yesterday the signing of their No. 1 draft choice, Dave Williams of Seattle, Wash.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

By RONALD THOMPSON HOUSTON (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, unbeaten in a glamorous boxing career, was convicted yesterday by an all-white jury on a charge of refusing induction into the military service and a federal judge promptly sentenced him to five years in prison.

Clay, 25, a descendant of a runaway Kentucky slave, in a surprise move, asked Judge Joe Ingraham to sentence him immediately after the jury deliberated only 21 minutes.

Standing erect in front of a gray haired jurist, Clay said in a subdued tone, "I'd like to say I would appreciate it if the court would sentence me now instead of waiting."

However, the maneuver appeared to be a formality since attorneys immediately said they will appeal the case and Clay left the court on the same $5,000 bond he had been under since May 8 when he was indicted.

Ingraham also fined Clay $10,000.

"I'm going to impose the maximum penalty," the judge said.

Ingraham added, however, that under normal practice if an appeal is not successful motions are made to reduce any sentence.

"Champ, did you expect the maximum?" a newsman asked Clay outside the court house.

"Yes, I did," he answered. The jury of six men and six women deliberated only 20 minutes to end a trial that had lasted less than two days and had included less than five hours of testimony by only eight witnesses. Clay did not take the stand.

Clay and his attorneys had challenged the legality of his 1-A draft classification on grounds he is a Black Muslim minister named Muhammad Ali.

As the jury told the judge it had received a verdict, Clay opened his big brown, expressive eyes widely, staring across the courtroom. He was asked by Ingraham to stand, an order with which he quickly complied.

When the word "guilty" was heard from the jury foreman, Clay sort of lowered his eyes, then leaned over and coughed faintly. Then Hayden Covington, his chief attorney from New York City, announced "we're ready for sentencing now."

There was a brief round of discussion as Clay stood before the bench with his attorneys and U.S. Atty. Morton L. Susman.

The discussion centered on whether Clay had been influenced by the Black Muslim sect.

"To my knowledge here is a man who has never been charged with any criminal act except a minor traffic violation," Susman said.

Susman then noted that Clay had won a Gold Medal as an Olympic boxing champion in 1961 and then went on to win the heavyweight championship of the world in 1964.

Susman said Clay became a Black Muslim in 1964 and "in my opinion that's where his troubles began. I think that's the reason he's here, his being in the Muslims."

Clay broke in and said, "If I may say so, my religion is not political in any way."

Ingraham quickly interrupted Clay and said, "You'll be heard in due order."

Covington then said the U.S. Constitution guarantees that a man has a right to the religion of his choice and that Clay became converted to the Muslims in an act of good faith.

"He is not under their influence," Covington said.

Clay had refused to take the traditional induction symbol of one step forward April 28 in Houston. He was indicted May 8 and his attorneys built his defense around contentions the heavyweight champion spends only 10 per cent of his time as a boxer and 90 per cent as a minister.

His chief attorney, Hayden Covington, New York City, told the court that, in effect, Clay is a "traveling" bishop for that religious sect.

1-0 Pitcher's Duel Hilites Rec Action

Charlie Pettit of City Ice & Beverage bested Towne & Country's Jim Ostergard, 1-0 in a pitcher's duel in the first game of a twinnit at Carbon Memorial Field to highlight last night's play in the Recreation Softball League.

Other games saw league-leading Twin-Drive boost its record to 9-2 with a 10-4 triumph over Surf Club and the Mineral Well Mets hang a 7-2 defeat on Sparkie Car Wash.

In the Carbon opener, Pettit and Ostergard each surrendered only four hits each, but the Icemen pushed the game's only tally across in the second frame to cop the victory.

Gene Chieffo singled in the inning and scored on Tony Mihaliko's double, then Pettit made it stand up.

A two-bagger by Dale Swanson was the only extra-base knock off Pettit.

The win was the eighth of the season for City Ice against live losses.

The Carbon nightcap was Twin Drive in all the way. The defending loop champions took a 4-0 edge in the last of the third and scored five more in the fourth after the Surfers had narrowed the gap to 4-2 in the top of the frame.

Surf Club bounced back for a pair in the fifth, but TDI added an insurance ran in the sixth to walk away with the victory. Dick White led TDI's 10-hit attack with a homer and triple. Larry Bearfield and Bob Barney both ripped triples for the winners.

For Surf Club, two-baggers by Art Zerbe and J. Carlson provided most of the punch.

Jack Colvin picked up the pitching win and Bill Slocum was tagged with the defeat.

The Mineral Well Mets, now 9-3, stayed right behind Twin Drive in the first half race by whipping Sparkie.

But Federal Judge Joe Ingraham, in his 30-minute charge to the jury, said the only question they had to decide was whether Clay knowingly and unlawfully refused induction. Ingraham noted specifically it was not the duty of the jury to decide whether the defendant was due an exemption from the draft because of his religion.

"The court has read the draft board file and has found there was a basis in fact for 1-A classification," Ingraham told the jurors. "You are not to consider this."

Ingraham had made such a finding while turning down a defense motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal.

Susman introduced into evidence a medical information form he said Clay filled out April 23 when he refused to take the one step forward symbolic of induction into the Army.

"In his own handwriting he wrote 'heavyweight boxing world champion' in the form's blank for occupation," Susman said.

Ingraham, in making his ruling, said he had read Clay's committee selective service file.

"I have read the draft board file and have reached the conclusion there is ample evidence to support the draft board action," Ingraham said. "As Mr. Covington said, basis and fact must be found in the file and I think it has been found there."

The judge said the file included several letters Clay wrote to the draft board in 1966 saying he was going out of the country to fight.

"He didn't say anything about going there to preach the word of Allah or seek converts," Ingraham added.

The arguments on the motion were held while the all-white jury of six men and six women were out of the courtroom. Clay spent part of the time drawing pictures.

As his attorneys prepared their final arguments, Clay rode an elevator from the ninth to the fifth floor of the federal court house to have roast beef sandwich and potato salad.

On the elevator, Clay took a few short jabs jokingly at a small child and, all smiles, said "I'd rather fight than switch."

Asked how he felt about the trial being so near the verdict stage, Clay said "I'm feeling real good."

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL ROUNDUP:

Tribe Continues Climb, Scalps KC, 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Luis Tiant hit a home run and won his sixth straight game, with ninth inning relief help from Steve Bailey, as the Cleveland Indians held off Kansas City 5-3 last night for their third straight victory.

Tiant, who hit his first homer of the season with none on in the seventh for a 5-1 lead, entered the ninth with a three-hitter.

Rick Monday hit his eighth homer with one out and Danny Cater and Jim Gosger each doubled for another run before Bailey came in and struck out the next two men.

Lee Maye opened the scoring for Cleveland with his fourth homer in the third inning with none on. The Indians made it 3-0 in the fourth on Max Alvis' run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly by Pedro Gonzalez. Gonzalez hit another sacrifice fly in the sixth before Tiant homered.

Tiant, 6-1, who hasn't lost since April 14, did not allow a hit until Phil Roof led off the sixth for the A's with his third homer. He was the only man to get past first base until the ninth.

Jim Nash, 7-6, took the defeat.

Cubs-Pirates
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Chuck

Hartenstein pitched a 2-3 innings of scoreless relief while Ted Savage and Ron Santo cracked three hits apiece as the Chicago Cubs trimmed Pittsburgh 5-3 last night, snapping the Pirates' three-game winning streak.

Hartenstein, picking up his second major league victory, relieved Joe Niekro after the Chicago starter was touched for a three-run pinch homer by Don Clendenon. He stopped Pittsburgh on four hits the rest of the way.

Chicago built a 4-0 lead against loser Steve Blass in the first four innings and finished with 14 hits.

Singles by Santo, Lee Thomas and Savage produced a run in the second. Paul Popovich, Billy Williams and Santo singled for another in the third.

In the fourth, hits by Randy Hundley and Savage, an error, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Don Kessinger accounted for two more runs.

Williams tripled with two out in the ninth and scored an insurance run on Santo's third single.

Cards-Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Dal Maxvill broke a 2-2 tie with a run-producing triple in the seventh inning and Orlando Cepeda hit a three-run homer in the eighth as league-leading St. Louis beat Houston 6-2 last night.

Maxvill's triple, following Alex Johnson's infield hit, came off starter Bo Belinsky, 1-3. Cepeda's ninth homer came off reliever Jim Owens after singles by Julian Javier and Curt Flood.

Larry Jaster won his fourth game of the year against two defeats, but needed relief from Ron Willis in the ninth.

The victory was St. Louis' third straight.

Belinsky's throwing error gave St. Louis a run in the first inning on Flood's hit and Maxvill's squeeze bunt hit in the second scored Tim McCarver, who had doubled.

Houston tied it with a run in the second on singles by Jim Landis, Chuck Harrison and Bob Lillis and an unearned run in the fourth as Rusty Staub singled and reached third when Alex Johnson let the ball get through him and Landis' sacrifice fly.

Senators-Chi Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — The Washington Senators capitalized on two unearned runs—one on an obstruction play—for a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox last night.

The loss ended a three-game winning string for the American League leaders.

Frank Bertina, acquired from Baltimore in the recent Mike Epstein trade, posted his first victory for the Senators with relief help from Darold Knowles.

The key play of the game occurred in the sixth inning, when the Senators, leading 2-1, had runners on first and second with two out. Paul Casanova singled up the middle and center fielder Tommie Agee fired a strike home, nailing Epstein at the plate. The umpires, however, ruled third baseman Don Buford obstructed Epstein and the run was allowed.

Tigers-Angels

DETROIT (AP) — Al Kaline doubled home the tying run and Jim Northrup singled him in with the winner in the eighth inning, pulling the Detroit Tigers from behind to a 2-1 victory over the California Angels last night.

Reliever George Brunet put himself in hot water by hitting Don Wert with a pitch with one out in the inning and Kaline followed with his shot against the left field wall. Bill Freehan was walked intentionally before Northrup singled to right.

Northrup was first given a double on the hit, but the official scorer later changed it to a single after checking Umpire John Flaherty, who said Northrup missed second base while trying for third. Northrup was retired trying to return to second.

Woody Held had given the Angels a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning with a homer, his fourth, off Johnny Podres. Jack Hamilton protected it until he left with two on and one out in the seventh. Brunet came in and got pinch hitter Jim Price to hit into a double play.

But the Tigers jumped on Brunet in the next inning, sending him to his 11th loss against three victories.

Dave Wickersham, who took over for Detroit when Podres left for a pinch hitter in the seventh, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. He is 4-0.

Phillies-Mets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Right-hander Larry Jackson continued his mastery of the New York Mets last night, blanking them on only one hit—a second inning double by Tommy Davis—as the Philadelphia Phillies breezed to a 4-0 victory.

The victory gave the 36-year-old Jackson an 18-0 lifetime mark against New York. Only San Francisco's Juan Marichal has done better against the Mets, having beaten them 19 times in 19 decisions.

Davis led off the second inning with a double off the scoreboard in right center field, but Jackson permitted only two other Mets to reach base in posting the second one-hitter of his career. In 1964, while pitching for the Chicago Cubs, he stopped Cincinnati on one hit.

The Phillies gave Jackson all the support he needed in the first inning when Tony Taylor singled, Rich Allen tripled and Don Lock rapped a two-run homer into the upper deck in left. Lock's single and a double by Gene Oliver gave the Phillies their fourth run in the third. Jackson's shutout was his 33rd in the majors, tying him with teammate Jim Bunning and California's Lew Burdette for third place among active pitchers. Don Drysdale of Los Angeles, with 39, and the Chicago Cubs' Curt Simmons, with 35, are the top two.

BoSox-Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Foy hit a grand slam homer in the fifth inning and Carl Yastrzemski followed with a bases-empty blast as the Boston Red Sox crushed the New York Yankees 7-1 last night behind the five-hit pitching of Gary Bell.

The loss was the Yankees' fourth in a row.

Bell and New York's Mel Stottlemyre were locked in a scoreless duel when Bill Tillman led off the fifth with a single. After a 54-minute rain delay, Stottlemyre walked Reggie Smith and Mike Andrews, filling the bases.

Braves-Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Marichal became the major league's first 10-game winner with a five-hitter last night in hurling the San Francisco Giants to a 5-1 victory over the slumping Cincinnati Reds.

Reds-Giants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles and Atlanta were tied at 2-2 after 12 innings here last night. Braves' starter Denny Lemaster had allowed eight hits and struck out 12. Ron Perranoski was on in relief for the Dodgers in the 13th.

Foy then walloped his grand slam into the left field seats and Yastrzemski drove his 17th homer of the year against the upper deck facade in right.

George Scott stroked a run-scoring single off reliever Hal Reniff in the eighth and tallied on Tillman's double, padding the lead.

Bell struck out six and walked three in bringing his record to 6. He blanked the Yankees until the ninth, when Joe Pepitone homered.

Atlanta relief pitcher ran into a little tough luck as Dodger Dick Schofield hits a single through the infield to drive in Jim Lefebvre, who had walked. The ninth inning hit ended Monday night's game, 3-2 for the third Dodger victory in a row.

Glenwood First Half Hinges on Beverage Games

The Warren Beverage Baseball Club will play five Glenwood League contests over the weekend, with the loop's first half title hinging on the results.

The biggest test for the Beveragemen, currently the league leaders with an 8-2 record, will come Friday evening at Erie. The locals meet second place Ferraro Ford at Bayview Field. Game time is 6 p.m.

The Formden, defending champions, have been coming on strong over the past few weeks. Sunday, they routed Security-Peoples, 10-1 for their seventh victory against three defeats. The loss virtually eliminated the Bankers' chances for the first half crown and gave Ferraro sole possession of second place, one-half game behind Beveragemen.

The local club holds a 2-1 edge in games played over Ferraro and tripped Security-Peoples three times in four outings.

Beverage gets a schedule break to complete the first half slate, meeting the last two place teams in twinbills on Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday, the Beveragemen will host Koehler Beer in a pair at War Memorial Field, the opener getting under way at 1 p.m. The games are a makeup of last Sunday's postponement because of wet grounds.

Beverage takes to the road again on Sunday, meeting Bihler Tire in a doubleheader at West Springfield. The locals swept two from the Tiremen here earlier in the season and romped over Koehler Beer in their only meeting.

Beverage Manager Bill LaRosa holds to his policy of not naming starting hurlers until gametime.

A dinner and dance for the participants and their wives followed the golfing.

The low gross score for Titusville was turned in by Ken Howard with a 76. CVCC's low gross was a 75 by Dave Dahler.

Dick Kane had a net score of 70 to lead the visitors. Other leaders were Joe Henne (72), Paul Serrins (73) and John Dunn (75) all for Titusville.

Russians Claim Set New World Glider Records

MOSCOW (AP) — World records for men and women glider pilots were claimed yesterday by the Soviet Union.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said pilot Anatoli Zaitsev and passenger Vladislav Kharitonov set a record of 569.17 miles for a flight to a goal declared before the takeoff. The old record was 436.20 miles, set by Russia's Pavel Antonov.

A women's record of 540.59 miles in a similar flight in an L-13 two-seat glider, was set by pilot Isabella Gorokhova and passenger Zinaida Kuznetsova, Tass reported. This surpassed the record of 384.62 set by the Soviet's Zinaida Solovye, Tass said.

The announcement of the records was made at a press conference by Nikolai Golovnev, sports commissioner of the Ckhlov Central Aeronautical Club of the USSR. Tass said details of the record flights are being sent to the International Aeronautical Federation.

Pro Golfers' Revolt At 'Showdown' Stage

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Touring tournament players and the Professional Golf Association failed to reach agreement in a bitter showdown meeting last night and appeared headed for a split that would result in a maverick tour of all the leading competitors.

Max Elbin of Washington, D.C., president of the PGA, issued an ultimatum for June 25 for players to declare that they will compete in the PGA national championship tournament July 20-24 in Denver.

"If these names are not submitted to us, we will notify our sections to hold tournaments for alternate players," Elbin said.

Members of the players' tournament committee — Chairman Dan Sikes, Doug Ford, Gardner Dickinson and Mason Rudolph — announced that there would be no change from the players' position.

The players have presented the PGA with a petition saying that they will boycott the PGA championship unless their demands for control of the tour are met.

"We won't worry about this ultimatum anymore than we did the one for June 15," said Dickinson.

Ford added: "We tried to iron things out. Now we will go ahead with our plans."

These plans apparently are to break from the PGA completely and set up a tour to be run by the players themselves.

All the leading pro golfers, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper, have their names on the petition signed earlier this spring. They all appear intent on operating without the PGA, if necessary.

Elbin, speaking for the PGA and its executive committee, called the players' move a "rule or ruin" maneuver.

"There is no intention to surrender," he said. "We positively will not permit this to happen to our organization."

Elbin said that the PGA championship would be staged regardless, with whatever talent is at hand and that the association would continue its tournament schedule.

He added that certain individuals who have been responsible for the present situation could be subject to suspension.

The meeting between the 14-member executive committee and the four members of the players' tournament committee was staged in an outlying motel where many of the players are quartered for the $105,000 Cleveland Open Tournament starting Thursday.

The 1967 PGA tournament schedule, with approximately $2.5 million in purses remaining, would not be affected by the current controversy. The PGA and players are committed to complete the season but new contracts will have to be negotiated at the start of next year.

The Tournament Sponsors Association, made up of 32 men who run the weekly tournaments, has issued a statement backing the players. It is not known how many of them would side with the protesting competitors against the PGA.

The players basically are asking for two points:

- 1—That the executive committee be stripped of its veto power which gives it control of all policy decisions;
- 2—That the players be permitted to schedule tournaments, control television monies and hire and fire tournament personnel.

One of the men in line of fire in the feud is Bob Creasy, former assistant secretary of labor and a labor negotiator who was brought in as executive director of the PGA 1½ years ago. The players insist that Creasy is not sufficiently player-oriented and is too close to the club professionals.

They also say that he has been too much inclined recently to meddle in their affairs.

Creasy, defending himself, said that he heard reports that the players plan to make him jump through a hoop.

Elbin called the Executive Committee and invited all touring players to attend, saying that he felt they had not been given the full story of the issues.

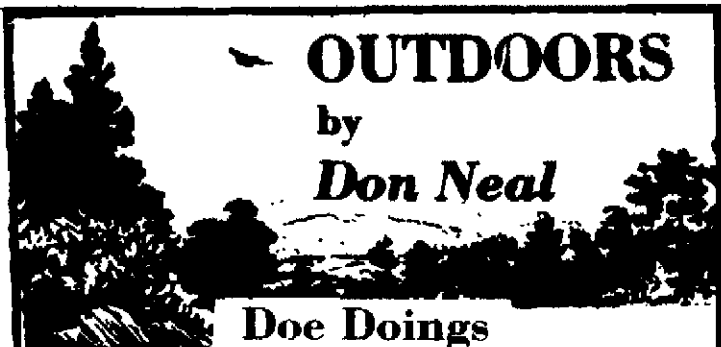

However, less than a dozen of the more than 150 who signed the petition showed up for the meeting.

One young pro, Roane Puett, who identified himself as a newcomer on the tour from Austin, Tex., got on the floor and said: "It seems to me that the big money winners want to run the PGA tour. I don't know what there is in this for me and players like me. We are not threats to anybody. When I am through, I would like to become a club pro and I think I need to stay in the PGA."

After the meeting, which saw charges and counter charges hurled by both sides, Elbin called another meeting of the Executive Committee, a which he planned to present two proposals for a possible settlement. One of them was to call upon former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to help settle the dispute.

The current controversy came to a head when the players voted to approve a $200,000 tournament for Frank Sinatra at Palm Springs, Calif., and the executive committee vetoed it because of fear that it would conflict with the Bob Hope Classic, an event of long standing on the tour.

During the course of the evening, Leo Fraser, secretary of the PGA, said, "The circuit does not belong to the players alone. It is a privilege for them to play on it. The circuit belongs to golf, its patrons and the teaching pros who help develop the players."

I was both surprised and pleased to get the following letter from Senator Dick Frame. It isn't often that a busy state senator can find time to take an interest in and give unsolicited support to something as argumentative and controversial as the number of antlerless deer permits (doe licenses) allotted to Warren County for the 1967 season.

With matters such as highways, the Governor's budget, aid to the aged, proposed tax increases, and a dozen and one other matters that his constituents must be bugging him about, the Senator certainly must have been tempted to toss this issue into the "circular file" with perhaps no more than the comment, "So what?"

But Dick, as his letter indicates, didn't take the easy way out. He writes:

Dear Don:

I noted your recent editorial on the doe license allocation to Warren County and I have asked the Game Commission to provide me with the statistics upon which they based their decision. As soon as I have them, I will pass them on to you. I do recall from previous conversations about the matter, that one of the relevant factors was crop damage.

Sincerely,
Richard C. Frame

The Senator is right. Crop damage and highway kills are always cited as the determining factors when the Game Commission wants to justify the shell game they play each year, when they dish the "doe tag" allotments to the various counties. But such rationalization leaves a lot to be explained in my book.

For instance, consider Bradford County. Based on a buck kill of 1616, in 1964, Bradford County was allocated 5,000 doe tags for the 1965 season. It can be presumed, I suppose, that the deer herd there was accounting for a certain number of highway kills and a certain amount of crop damage at this time.

And as Bradford County, along with all of the other North-tier counties, is predominantly a forested area, it can also be presumed that the bulk of the crop damage reported was confined to such forest-related interests as deer range and reforestation potentials.

During the 1965 season the 5,000 doe hunters in the county harvested 1,217 antlerless deer. The next year, 1966, Bradford County's doe permits were upped to 8,650. Which, if it meant anything, indicated that number of highway kills and the amount of crop damage in the county had increased considerably in just a 12-month span.

When the 8,650 doe hunters took to the woods during the 1966 season, they harvested 2,716 antlerless deer (more than double the number of the previous season) which if it proved anything, indicated that the county herd had increased and the Game Commission's move to control it was in line with good wildlife management practices.

But then the bomb! For the 1967 season, Bradford County's allotment of doe permits has been dropped to only 7,200.

Now it doesn't seem reasonable to me that a county that ranked first in the state in the number of antlerless deer kills in 1966 should be allotted less than half the number of doe permits allotted to a county (Warren County) that had a doe kill of only 1,387. As any wildlife manager will tell you, it takes a whale of a deer herd to produce a "four hunters — one deer" ratio in the kill (as in Bradford County), and it's not much of a deer herd that produces a "ten hunters — one deer" kill ratio (as in Warren County).

So if Bradford County is supporting this kind of herd on about the same kind of terrain as that in Warren County, how does the Game Commission reason that a reduction in the number of doe permits will control crop damage and highway kills in Bradford County? And now do they reach the conclusion that Warren County should be allotted 15,850 doe tags (the highest number for any county in the state) when we have one of the lowest hunter-to-kill ratios in the state?

Just to look at some of the other hunter-to-kill ratios in the various counties of the state is enough to discourage the average Warren County doe hunter.

Potter County's ratio last year was about 5-to-1 with a kill of 2,602. Lycoming County, with a kill of 2,366 had a 6-to-1 ratio. Centre County with a kill of 2,377, also had an approximate 6-to-1 kill.

To go through all of the counties that have a better ratio than Warren County would make one dizzy. But then, of course, there are some counties, where the ratio is less favorable. These counties, however, are not generally in what is considered as "deer country" in the same sense as Warren County.

As I have stated in this column before, I recognize the fact that there are other interests besides those of the hunter that must be considered in regulating the size of the deer herd. When its size is such that the desired average kill is almost doubled it is evident that something must be done. But what is done, I think, should be done honestly and fairly — with all hints of favoritism obliterated.

We solve problems like these faster than anyone around.

Frame-Sponsored Bill Introduced

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate Judiciary General Committee released to the floor for action yesterday a bill that would exempt members of certain religious minorities from Pennsylvania's Sunday closing laws.

The House-passed measure, known as the Sabbatarian Relief Bill, would permit Jews and others who observe a day other than Sunday as a day of worship and rest to do business on Sunday if they close their business places on the Sabbath.

Only unincorporated businesses, so-called "mom and pop" stores, would come under the provisions of the bill.

Also introduced was a bill that would abolish all boards, commissions and agencies established in Pennsylvania in the past, unless recertified by the General Assembly.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Richard C. Frame, R-Venango, and Jack E. McGregor, R-Allegheny, would require all boards, commissions and agencies not recertified by the legislature to go out of business by July 1, 1971.

Frame and McGregor said the bill, which they described as "a somewhat radical measure," would force the legislature to make decisions about the necessity of any particular agency.

They said such decisions are necessary because of the rapid expansion of state agencies in recent years.

The Judiciary General Committee also released for floor action a House-passed bill that would make parents liable for personal injury and property damage caused by children under 18 years of age.

A bill that would permit the sale of beer and liquor in sports stadiums in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh was introduced with bipartisan support.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Henry Claffran, D-Philadelphia, and Sen. John H. Ware, R-Chester, would permit concessionaires to sell malt beverages in paper cups in stadiums and arenas an hour before and 30 minutes after sports events.

Moreover, the bill would permit clubs and restaurants to sell liquor in stadiums or arenas with seating capacities of more than 12,000.

Tri-State Strike Continues

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stone masons returned to work yesterday as officials of the striking boilermakers union met with management to press their contract demands in the Tri-State construction strike.

Stone Masons Local 33 reached tentative agreement Monday night but didn't sign a contract, according to Angelo Carboni, president of the Building Trades Council of Western Pennsylvania.

Carboni said the masons and the Masons Contractors' Association agreed to a $1.20 an hour increase "plus whatever above that the bricklayers settle for."

The masons and the bricklayers belong to the same union. The bricklayers, however, have no meetings scheduled with their employers association.

Settlement by the masons was the first breakthrough in the past two weeks of the three-week-old strike. Also off the job are the ironworkers, carpenters, operating engineers, painters, roofer and lathers.

American Planes Continue Pressure

(C) N.Y. Times News Service SAIGON — American warplanes continued their steady pressure Monday against North Vietnamese railroad yards and lines near Hanoi.

Air Force and Navy pilots flew 122 missions under clearing skies. A spokesman said anti-aircraft fire was heavy but that no planes were lost.

MIG fighter planes were sighted again Monday as they have been periodically through the past week. But again, the spokesman said, the Communist fighter pilots turned away without challenging the American planes.

Thailand-based F-105 Thunderchiefs blasted the Baogiang thermal power plant, 28 miles northeast of Hanoi, the 11th time the plant has been hit since Feb. 24. An Air Force spokesman said the generator plant, the boiler house and other buildings in the power plant "complex" were "heavily" damaged. The spokesman said smoke and debris, which rose to 500 feet, covered the target and prevented a complete assessment of damage.

Fighter-bombers also attacked the adjoining Oacgiang railroad yard where pilots reported their bombs impacting down the center of the yard.

Air Force fighter bomber pilots also hit the Nachang railroad yard.

Detroit's Policemen On Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly a third of the 2,668 policemen on patrol beats in Detroit were off the job yesterday in a continuing dispute over wages.

Many had called in ill, while others were under suspension. By midmorning 763 of the men assigned to scout car duty or walking beats were absent.

The city's police force numbers more than 4,000 but some departments such as the detective bureau were not involved in the absence from work.

The policemen's union urged its members to stay on the jobs although a settlement of the dispute appeared remote.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, home in a hurry from the U.S. Conference of Mayors meeting in Honolulu, held firm in his rejection of the pay demand. At the same time mediation efforts collapsed.

The men off the job included 198 suspended for an alleged slowdown in the writing of traffic violation tickets.

The police union demands a top pay of $10,000 a year. The top is now $8,335 in the fifth year of service. City officials say the budget doesn't permit any more money.

Gov. George Romney said State Police and the National Guard were under alert to aid Detroit if necessary. Cavanagh, however, said he did not believe this necessary, but added that he had had several phone conversations with the governor about the police situation.

Despite the police manpower shortage police headquarters said there was no rise in the amount of crime.

AND WORK FOR PEACE

Israeli Minister: 'We Will Forget'

By PAUL KOHN SHARM EL SHEIKH, Sinai (AP) — Prime Minister Lev Eshkol of Israel, visiting this most remote of the Arab posts seized by Israeli troops in the Middle East war, said yesterday, "We want to forget the past and work for a lasting peace."

Eshkol said he was ready to meet President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, King Hussein of Jordan or any other Arab leader for peace talks "at any time, at any place, on land or at sea."

Dressed in thaki clothing and a black beret, the chief of state now 71, flew from Jerusalem to Sharm el Sheikh, at the tip of the Sinai Peninsula, where Egyptian troops formerly stood guard at the entrance to the Strait of Tiran.

This is "the place where all he trouble started," Eshkol said, referring to Nasser's order last month closing the strait to Israeli shipping.

At the same time, he said his offer to confer with Arab leaders was not made from a position of strength and arrogance.

In a prepared statement to correspondents, the prime minister said there once had been a time when Arabs and Jews worked together.

"The Middle East has a great future if we could work together in peace again," he said. "This opportunity must not be missed. We do not believe in armistices. We must establish a lasting peace with friendship and security so that neither side need be afraid of the other."

In offering a hand of friendship in person-to-person talks, Eshkol said its acceptance by the Arabs often depended on the decisions of individuals.

He expressed the hope that his offer would fall "on open minds." If it is rejected, he said, Israel is capable of taking care of itself.

Fear Rail Rate Hike

(C) N.Y. Times News Service HAMMOND, Ind. — The Johnson Administration is alarmed by the prospect of rate increases for the railroad and trucking industries, fearing that they could have an inflationary impact on the economy.

No decision has been made by the Department of Transportation on whether it will intervene before the interstate commerce commission when the regulator body holds hearings next month on the application of railroads for a freight rate increase, according to A. Scheffer Lang.

But Lang, federal railroad administrator for the Department of Transportation, indicated here yesterday, that it was unlikely that his department would intervene.

"We are so new and in such a state of organizational ferment that we don't really have good enough pipelines and a sufficiently well-functioning staff mechanism to develop the necessary supporting evidence required of parties to a rate application or even a merger proceeding," Lang said. He added, however, that "eight months to a year from now things will be different. Then we should be well able to decide what to do."

Lang said that he believed that some companies would be "extremely hard hit" by a freight rate increase. "It's going to be reflected in a general increase in the price index," he added.

Dog Patrols Introduced In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Because of what Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo calls "a great crime deterrent," he plans to set up police-dog patrols throughout the city.

In an announcement yesterday, Rizzo said the patrols are being increased mainly to make city streets and subways safe for women.

Beginning next week, he said, policemen-dog teams will be on duty round-the-clock on subway and elevated trains and in underground concourses in the heart of the city. In addition, he said, 20 other teams in jeeps will be assigned to various parts of the city.

The subways now are patrolled from noon to 6 a.m., the following morning and the jeeps cover only certain neighborhoods.

Rizzo said business areas, which had been covered by the patrols have had a 20 per cent drop in robberies and holdups. The department started using the dogs more than a year ago after an outbreak of crime in the subways.

Thugs Using Walkie Talkies Rob Woman, 59

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two thugs working methodically with walkie-talkies to keep in touch with a lookout, bound and gagged a Squirrel Hill woman in her house yesterday and ransacked it of an undetermined amount of jewelry.

As the two men sacked the house, the victim's husband tried repeatedly to telephone her to tell of his brother's death.

Mrs. Hilda Kart, 59, told police a "very polite" man carrying a brief case confronted her in her garden and said he had a letter from her husband and needed a receipt.

Police said they went into the house and the man pulled a revolver. He was joined by a second man, also carrying a brief case but whose face was covered with a stocking.

Monsoon Season Hits Red Offensive

BY BERNARD WEINRAUB

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
CAMP ENARI, South Viet-Nam—A soft drizzle fell on the bamboo and tropical broad-leaf forest around this camp early yesterday—an omen to the American soldiers in the area who are quietly preparing for bitter combat in the weeks ahead.

With the monsoon season starting in the Central Highlands, the troops of the 4th Infantry Division are aware that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have hit hardest when the rain and fog disrupt armed helicopter support and when the jungle turns muddy and impassable.

"In the dry season we can fly from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.," said Maj. Gen. William R. Peers, the cigar-chomping commander of the 4th Division. "In the monsoons we fly as little as five hours."

"The problem is the terrain too. It's a huge and rugged area with thick, thick jungle. At times, it's damn near impossible getting through."

To bolster the number of American troops in the area, the 4,500-man 173rd Airborne Brigade was flown two weeks ago from Bienhoa, 20 miles north of Saigon, to the Central Highlands.

The aim of the move was to prevent enemy troops that have come from Cambodia from sweeping east to the heavily populated Coastal Plain.

At Camp Enari, about 50 miles from the Cambodian border and seven miles from Pleiku, intelligence officers estimate that there are anywhere from 8,000 to 16,000 North Vietnamese troops in the 3,600-square-mile area that the division covers west of Pleiku. There are also thousands of Viet Cong — no one knows the exact number — and a rumored three North Vietnamese divisions just inside Cambodia.

In the coming weeks, the army expects some of the 20,000 American troops in the area to come into especially heavy contact with the enemy in the Ladrang River Valley and the city of Duclo, near Pleiku.

"What the enemy needs is rice to support their operations and these are the easiest access routes for them," an intelligence officer said. "During the monsoon season they've got to get out of those mountains too."

To the officers and enlisted men of the 4th Division, the North Vietnamese are a tough, hardened, respected foe.

"They're damn well disciplined," said one officer. "They've conducted assaulting attacks on us which were absolutely suicidal. They're quite fanatical, you know, during assaults."

"They've got good communications and some very good equipment," the officer went on. "They've got a good rifle, the AK47, which is a Russian model made by the Chinese and North Vietnamese. It's automatic and semi-automatic."

For the past two and a half months, the division has been engaged in a military operation called "Francis Marion," near the Cambodian border.

The most savage contact of the operation occurred during the week of May 18 when a platoon was overrun and 22 men died. Since then the clashes have been brief.

The division claims 652 North Vietnamese and 34 Viet Cong have been killed since the operation began on April 6. On the American side, 100 men have died and 500 have been wounded.

NEW PARTY IN CALIFORNIA

Wallace Presidential Drive Opens on Coast

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
LOS ANGELES — A nationwide third-party presidential campaign on behalf of Alabama's former Gov. George C. Wallace was announced yesterday by a California organizer claiming the authorization of Wallace's headquarters.

The effort will be entitled the American Independent Party, and will be pursued in all 50 states and the District of Columbia, the spokesman said. He added that it did not preclude Wallace's entry into state competitions as a Democrat.

The new third party's view of basic "issues," it was stated, includes:

- "Preservation of law and order, the safety of our wives and children in our communities, and the authority of law enforcement agencies to deal with crime at the local level;
- "Protection of property rights from arbitrary government and court interference" — which was explained as relating to racially selective housing;
- "Preservation of the right of each state and community to run its own educational system without federal bureaucratic interference;
- "A foreign policy based on America's best interests, not world opinion, including total support of our servicemen once we have committed them to fight"

The spokesman was William K. Shearer of San Diego, a 36-year-old right-wing publicist and political organizer who has had ties with the segregationist Mississippi-based Citizens Council.

He said he had taken on the full-time paid job of organizing Wallace's third-party efforts at the behest of the Wallace Campaign, headquartered in Montgomery, Ala.

Up to now Wallace has not formally declared his candidacy for President, but has said he will run if neither of the major parties produces a candidate whose views reflect what he considers to be those of the national majority, particularly on racial matters.

Chairman Bliss Gets YoungGOP Warning

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss has been warned that the Young Republican National Federation is not likely to change its constitution to strengthen senior party control over its organization.

Tom Van Sickle of Kansas, Young Republican chairman, said at a news conference he had told Bliss it would be extremely difficult to muster the required two-thirds vote in the youth organization convention's formal sessions beginning today to change its constitution.

Van Sickle has proposed that two members of the Republican National Committee be named to the youth group's executive board and that Bliss be given a veto on the appointment of a Young Republican executive director.

The marching, cheering young delegates swarming in the hotel lobbies to boom the campaigns of three candidates for the chairmanship to succeed Van Sickle didn't seem to object too much to these provisions. But there was an uproar over the national senior organization's attempt to put a 34-year age limit on membership in the junior group.

Running into strenuous objections to any national dictation on how young Young Republicans should be, Chairman Bill Tucker of Denver, Colo., told the federation's Constitution Committee, "There is no need to recommend something to the convention that won't pass."

Wrapped up in this furor is the obvious aim of Bliss to cut off from places of power in the federation conservatives who have controlled its course since 1963 and who have grown older in the process.

Van Sickle said he did not know if Bliss, arriving last night for an appearance at the federation's first formal con-

Mideast Refugees Near Starvation

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS — The United Nations was told yesterday there must be immediate action if food was to be available after the next three weeks for the million Arab refugees in the Middle East.

The commissioner general of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), Laurence V. Michelmore, said in a written report from the scene that although he could not yet give complete figures, there were at least 100,000 newly displaced persons in Jordan alone. About 80,000 of those were earlier refugees displaced from their camps.

He said conditions were particularly bad in the Gaza Strip. It has not yet been possible to investigate the situation in Syria, he said.

Secretary General Thant distributed Michelmore's findings to all member nations without comment, except to say he was passing it on "because of the widespread interest in the humanitarian problems resulting from the recent hostilities in the Near East."

The report arose from a survey made by Michelmore in an effort to minimize the hardship produced by the new fighting and resulting displacement of refugees.

He said that supplies for refugees already registered with UNRWA were sufficient for one month, but that the new displacements might call for more money and broader powers for the agency to meet its obligations.

"I have no immediate concern over the ability of our health services to cope with casualties and others requiring medical care, given the existing cooperation of the authorities," he said. "My main concern is that the agency should continue to move supplies of food, etc., into these areas."

National Guard Operation Halted

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa. (AP) — Maj. Gen. Thomas R. White Jr., state adjutant general, said yesterday that "Operation Kitty Hawk," a week-long military training exercise scheduled for August, has been canceled.

Gen. White said that 15,000 members of the Selected Reserve Force of the 28th Infantry Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, were to have taken part in the exercise, which was to have been staged in North Carolina.

AMA President Warns of 'Threat'

ATLANTIC CITY — Dr. Milford O. Rouse, the new president of the American Medical Association, urged doctors yesterday to step up efforts to curb government planning in the field of medicine.

In an inaugural address to the 116th annual convention of the association, the 64-year-old Dallas gastroenterologist asserted that the "threat" to the private practice of medicine had not stopped with Medicare and Medicaid.

"Judging by events of the last two years," he told some 1,000 physicians that "we must increase the effectiveness of our opposition."

Rouse said the government was now "making its moves into areas where, to its own satisfaction at least, it is able to demonstrate unfulfilled needs for health care or health care planning." He urged that organized medicine meet the "crisis" by filling any vacuum it found in communitywide health planning before the government did.

In an interview Rouse said that he still refuses to take patients who insist that their bills be assigned to a Medicare fiscal agent. Many Medicare patients, he asserted, "have no need for government help." He said more and more doctors were insisting upon direct billing.

Rouse said in his speech that the medical profession was "faced with the concept of health care as a right rather than a privilege" and with "many additional social concepts" distressing to doctors.

He named some of these as price and wage fixing, emphasis on a nonprofit approach to medicine, problems of free choice, increasing coercion, special attacks in the drug field, and emphasis on the academic and institutional environment.

START IN CORRY

State Policemen Cracking Down

State police Saturday night launched a new "task force" law enforcement concept in the Corry substation's patrol area. The payoff was a collection of 10 motor vehicle violations and five minors charged with transporting intoxicants.

Sgt. George Martin, officer in charge of the Corry substation, said the patrol area was covered by Cpl. John Hornick and Trooper Paul Sita, the normal patrol, four troopers from Erie and Trooper William C. Dudnick and Mari Golomb of the Warren substation.

Stopping cars at a number of locations, troopers uncovered seven operators license violations and one each for faulty

Sheffield Teenager Uninjured

A Sheffield area teenager escaped serious injury early Sunday when his car crossed Chase st. in Kane and rammed a parked car.

Listed in fairly good condition Monday afternoon at Kane Community Hospital was Ralph Ordway, 16, who suffered multiple facial lacerations when his face jammed into and through the windshield of his car.

Residents of the area were awakened by the crash shortly after 2 a.m., investigated, called the Kane ambulance service and borough police.

The youth was removed from the car and a large piece of glass removed from one cheek before he was taken to the hospital.

According to police, Ordway was driving south on Chase st. when his car crossed and hit the front end of a parked car owned by William T. Lynde, of 408 Chase st. Both cars were extensively damaged.

Borough police said motor vehicle code charges will be filed against Ordway.

Stag Picnic Planned

The American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers' Chautauqua-Warren Chapter 108, will hold their annual stag at Spencer's Barn, in Kiatone, this Thursday. There will be golf, horse shoe, softball and music. The stag will start at 1 p.m. with smorgasbord at 5 p.m. for members and guests.

muffler, faulty lights and no registration card. In addition they made five arrests under the criminal code of minors transporting or possessing intoxicants.

Sgt. Martin said the task force concept would be sent into action whenever the need arises but at no set time. He stated he was pleased with the first use of the plan.

Under-18 Drivers Warned

Colonel Frank McKetta, commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police, advises youthful Pennsylvania operators that New York State will arrest and fine any motorist who is under 18 regardless of the validity of his license in Pennsylvania or any other state.

McKetta said that, "Thousands of Pennsylvanians will soon be going on vacations. If parents expect their under 18 drivers to share the wheel time then it should not be done in New York. Their laws do not recognize any license issued to our 16 and 17 year olds."

"Because of the Canadian fair we anticipate that many Pennsylvania motorists will use New York roads to reach Canada. We are asking our Troop Commanders to contact all high schools in their areas and request that school principals post a notice of this New York law on their bulletin boards. We have asked the Department of Public Instruction to contact all driver education teachers in order to pass this information along to their students."

Six County Drivers' Licenses Suspended

Six Warren County motorists have had their operators' licenses suspended or revoked for the period beginning June 5. They are: Carmella M. Baribeau, 1411 Pennsylvania ave., indefinite; Kerry N. Bowser, 320 Weiler rd., speeding, four months; Richard L. Cobb, Sunset Motel, driving during suspension, one year; Joan E. Henry, 16 N. Parker st., speeding, 60 days; Glenda C. Lucas, 137 Bates st., Youngsville, permitting a violation, two months and Larry E. Walters, RD 1, Columbus, speeding, two months.

PAINT REMOVER STARTS FIRE

Borough firefighters sped to the scene of a fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Cerra, 107 N. South st., at 12:50 p.m. yesterday. The blaze started in the porch eaves from burning paint off with an electric paint remover. All normal equipment responded and some damage resulted, according to fire chief Ernie Fitzgerald.

The men were out one hour. Richard Pascuzzi and his father were first on the scene, thinking Mrs. Cerra, who had been ill, might be upstairs. Although smoke was dense, a rescue attempt was made but Mrs. Cerra was safe elsewhere. The men then called the fire department. (Photo by Mansfield)

'Sexual Revolution' Brings Changes in Young Behavior

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In today's younger generation, the so-called "sexual revolution" is bringing more of a change in attitude than behavior, a psychiatrist said yesterday.

"I would suggest that we are not seeing orgies or lack of control but rather a different kind of control—self-control based not on guilt or fear of disapproval but on a concept of human relations that emphasizes self-respect, human worth and human dignity," said Dr. James F. Masterson Jr. of New York.

Adolescents now, more than before, are demanding "logical reasons for ethical standards."

Masterson told the American Medical Association.

Dr. Robert R. Bell, sociologist of Temple University in Philadelphia, reported increasing evidence that "a number of women may pass their husbands in sexual interest and desire."

A study of 196 college-educated wives indicates that about one in four are not satisfied with the frequency of sexual intercourse in their marriages, he said.

Potentially, this may raise serious problems for many men, he said, since "there is biologically little to restrict the frequency with which woman can indulge in sexual intercourse."

The older husbands may become "neither physically nor psychologically capable of satisfying her needs. It is possible in the near future there will be an increasing number of problems in marriage centering around the lack of sexual satisfaction by the wife," Bell said.

Masterson, of Cornell University Medical College, said: "I think our fears about sexual misbehavior have led us to underestimate the fact that beginning sexual experience for many youngsters is often fraught with anguish and pain, and, therefore, can be as much a trial as a pleasure."

County Man Is Named Top Airman

Airman First Class Douglas L. Wilson, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shannon M. Wilson, RD 2, Warren, was named "Airman of the Month" for May, according to his commanding officer, Major Elmer W. Merrow.

The Warren County man's parents were advised of the honor by Major Merrow, who said Wilson was selected from a group of airmen within the Weather Relay Center, Detachment 3, 1957 Communications Group, APO, San Francisco, 96515, located at Kuna Facility.

Wilson then appeared before a board of officers and senior non-commissioned officers, meeting further competition from men of other sections within the detachment and was chosen from among several top-notch airmen.

Major Merrow wrote: "It is evident your son won the award through a great deal of hard work and conscientious effort. It is a most noteworthy achievement and one of which you and your son may be justly proud. The officer said during Airman Wilson's tour of duty under his command 'he has performed his job in a highly satisfactory manner. He has always accomplished more than required in his work and has never complained when given extra or unscheduled duties.'"

According to the major, the Warren man's appearance and conduct are always above reproach and he wears his uniform proudly. Merrow said Wilson is an excellent example of the type of airman needed and desired in the Air Force today, concluding by saying "it has given me personal satisfaction to know your son and to serve as his commander."

School District Opens Summer School Program

(Editor's Note: Summer means vacations for many students and teachers, but for some it means more school. This is the first of three articles on summer education in Warren County. Covering the story is Elaine Rhodes, a student at Thiel College who is on summer vacation and working for the Times-Mirror and Observer).

By ELAINE RHODES

The Title I summer reading program will have 400 county youngsters enrolled this summer. The $80,000 program begins tomorrow.

Title I, a summer reading development program provided for in the federal Elementary-

Secondary Educational Act of 1965, will begin its second year of operation June 22-July 29. Title I is aimed at motivating "educationally disadvantaged" children, specifically those with reading-related problems, to develop a better attitude towards learning and education in general.

Designed for children in third through sixth grades, this year's program will be working with youngsters selected on a basis of need and capacity for development. Twenty-seven county school teachers are participating in Title I, aided by 27 county college students planning on teaching careers. A music specialist, art specialist, two speech therapists, and a school psychologist have also been hired. The six centers involved are located in Lander, Pittsfield, Sheffield, Tidoute, Irvindale, and Pleasant Township. The 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. day will include a lunch hour.

According to Tom Miller, head of Title I in Warren County, the program is a community service action financed by public taxes. It is found in counties where educators are progressive and are interested in helping disadvantaged school children improve their skills.

It differs from Project Head Start in that it is a purely voluntary effort on the part of educators. Federal funds can be obtained only if a program is prepared and federally approved. The amount of the funds allocated is determined by the percentage of low income families in the county.

Expenditures in this year's budget include the purchase of reading-aid equipment which is too expensive for the local school district to buy independently. Through Title I it can be purchased at no expense to local taxpayers and becomes the property of the school district.

In pointing out the advantages offered by Title I, Miller said that it is beneficial in both the short and long-run. If children are encouraged to learn now and are provided with the reading and comprehensive tools necessary for a good education, then the problems of slow learners, grade-repeaters and prospective dropouts can be corrected at the elementary level. In the long-run, society benefits by having alert, educated adults who will not become tax burdens in welfare lines.

Warren County's Title I program is considered to be one of the finest in this part of the state and has been greatly expanded in comparison to many others. It not only operates during its summer sessions, but provides a tutoring service to help failing students during the winter.

Water Ski Show Set for July 4th

A 14-year-old Pittsburgh girl will be among those starring at the Jaycee water ski show at 2 p.m. July 2 on Allegheny Reservoir.

Maggie Jordan started water skiing at the age of seven and entered her first competition when she was eight. At nine she qualified as a "Master" skier. She has been eastern regional champion for six years in the junior division and in 1966 was eastern regional champion in the girl's division.

Maggie, in 1964, amassed the most points ever awarded in the junior competition and that year received Sports Illustrated magazine's award of merit.

In the four regional tournaments Maggie entered last year, she won a total of 16 first place trophies (slalom, jump, trick skiing and over-all points) and now her trophies and medals number about 140. Her mother says they will soon have to add an extra room to their home to hold Maggie's trophies.

The young lady was first introduced to water skiing by her brother, Bill, shortly after the Jordens bought a summer home at Conneaut Lake. Bill has won several awards for water skiing himself and is a member of the Century Club skiers who have made a jump of 100 feet or over.

Last summer alone found Maggie competing at Lake Placid, Endicott and Schenectady, N. Y.; Columbus, Ohio and Miami. This summer's national meet will be in Austin, Tex. and Maggie hopes to be there.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

Today is the Chamber of Commerce's picnic at Jackson Valley Country Club, and I want to urge as many of you to attend as can possibly go. It's the one thing that the Chamber does exceptionally well with a minimum of talk. Consequently, it's the most widely understood Chamber activity.

Of course, if you do plan to go, you must remember to behave acceptably. This is, after all, a social event and its informality should not be confused with a complete relaxation of the barriers of good taste and good manners.

Thus, it is not considered good form to take turns berating the Chamber officials for the work, or lack of it, that they have done all year. Everyone realizes that this is one of the few times that you see them at a Chamber event, but your complaints should be held for a proper time—such as a meeting.

This quite naturally means you may never get what's bothering you off your chest. That, however, is a problem that can be solved at a later time and not during a golf game, a dinner, or a dance.

And it is neither the time nor the place to begin expounding on the evils of creeping socialism, the damage being done by a highway bypass, or the problems caused by the Industrial Development Association.

Save such things for the annual meeting. It's a quite dreary affair anyhow.

Men's Fashions Introduced
At Maurice Rentner Show

NEW YORK—Furriers do it. Pierre Cardin in France does it. Now even Bill Blass of Maurice Rentner's doing it.

The designer of women's clothes briefly turned Seventh Avenue co-ed Monday as he introduced his first collection of men's clothes along with his women's designs for Maurice Rentner. He succeeded in turning the minds of the women in the audience from their own wardrobes to their husband's.

"I can't wait to see David in some of the things," said Mrs. David Evans. Her husband, the shoe manufacturer, supplied the footwear for the mannequins in the distaff part of the show. "I can see Harri in everything but the kilt," said Mrs. Betsy Harilaos Theodoropoulos, whose husband is with the National Shipping and Trading Corp.

The designer agreed that the green plaid kilt was somewhat extravagant. With a green velvet jacket, it provided a smashing finale to the show, complementing a mannequin's at-home outfit of plaid pants and wine satin jacket. "To be realistic, I see the men's jacket worn with plaid wool pants," Blass observed.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's mother will be coming to visit next month on her annual "inspection tour." I have already called my doctor and asked him to reorder my migraine pills. For 12 years her visits have given me blinding headaches.

The first thing my mother-in-law does is go through my cupboards and medicine cabinet and throw out everything she decides I don't need. Then she relines the shelves. After that she rearranges the furniture and changes the pictures around. Then she checks my linen closet and tears up the sheets and pillowcases if they have a few worn spots. Her favorite expression is, "Rags should be used for rags."

Please don't suggest that my husband talk to her. He has refused. Thanks for your help.—MIGRAINE MILLIE

DEAR MILLIE: Greet your mother-in-law with the announcement that from now on she is going to be a guest in your home and guests don't rearrange the furniture, clean the cupboards or tear up the linen. It's up to YOU to tell her, not your husband, since these matters are within the homemaker's province.

This is the only realistic solution, Millie, and if you don't follow through and take the advice it means you really do want to have those headaches.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman in our neighborhood calls the rescue squad at least once a month. They take her to the hospital, keep her for a day, then send her home because the doctors can find nothing wrong with her.

This woman seems to know exactly when her fainting spells are coming. She always manages to put in a phone call to the rescue squad just before she passes out. She has never broken a bone or gotten a bruise that anyone knows of.

When I was discussing this ridiculous phony with my sister-in-law recently my husband scolded me for not being more charitable. Why should I be charitable when I know this woman is faking? Please reply in the paper.—NO SYMPATHY FOR PRETENDERS

DEAR NO SYMPATHY: Perhaps the doctors can find nothing physically wrong with the woman, but she is sick just the same. A person who would go to such extremes to get attention has a severe emotional problem which can be even more incapacitating than a physical illness. The woman needs compassion and understanding, not criticism.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Don't tell me I am cheap or petty. Just tell me what to do about two friends whose inveterate and skillful mooching are about to drive me nuts.

We three have known each other for years—went all the way through school together. Neither of these girls is so hot in the kitchen but it's because they don't try very hard. Their menus are unimaginative and they buy cheap cuts of meat to begin with.

Every time they have dinner at my place they ask if they can take the leftovers home. They go through the icebox and help themselves to everything in sight—even the butter. I hate to refuse when they tell me the dinner was so delicious they'd like the leftovers for lunch tomorrow. Please think of a genteel reply which means "no."—RAIDED

DEAR RAIDED: Tell them you thought the dinner was delicious, too, and the leftovers are going to be YOUR lunch for tomorrow. You'll only have to say it three or four times and they'll quit asking.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

A New You by Emily Wilkens In The Mailbag

DINING DILEMMA

When you're having dinner with a date in an elegant restaurant and the waiter sets the main course in front of you, who should begin eating first?

Betsy C.

A gentleman always waits for the lady to begin, but it's polite to wait until you both have been served. If your escort hasn't been served and insists you begin by saying your food will get cold, pick up your fork graciously and take a tiny bite or two. This usually eliminates further coaxing.

PAINT PROBLEM

I can't ever seem to apply eye makeup without looking like a painted doll. How can I make it look soft and subtle?

Jane C.

Consider using a soft, broad eyeliner pencil rather than the more popular liquid or cake types. Apply a fine line, as close to the base of your lashes as possible, on the top lids only. Pomade or petroleum jelly, brushed over lashes, may darken them sufficiently. Try using your mascara on the tips of lashes.

Eye shadow is certainly not a must. A bit of white powder applied just under the brows will add a soft glow.

Brush your brows with a touch of baby oil or petroleum jelly. It keeps them looking well-groomed. If they're light, use pencil or powder in light or medium brown. "Feather" it onto the hairs themselves, never the skin, before brushing brows into place.

TOO MUCH MUSCLE

I have very heavy muscles in my arms. Is there anything I can do to make them go away. Could carrying a loaded school briefcase have anything to do with this problem?

Ellen T.

Definitely. Carrying a heavy briefcase or even a large purse day after day can cause overdeveloped muscles. How about investigating the type of book bag which is strapped onto the back? Indian women knew all about this theory. They carried their papooses in smug, comfortable little bundles on their backs.

Avoid strenuous arm exercises or movements like pulling and tugging.

To camouflage upper arm problems, wear stoles and dresses with sleeves.

MINNIE MOUSE

How can I find the best length and shape for false lashes?

Carol F.

Almost all false lashes come pre-trimmed and shaped these days. If yours aren't, however, keep the length not much longer than the length of your own lashes.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣
When South heard his partner respond at the two level over the opening one heart bid, his thoughts immediately turned to big things. The two spade rebid, known to the trade as a "reverse," is a strength showing call inasmuch as it forces partner into the three level to show a mere preference for hearts.

North's decision to support hearts instead of bidding two no trump was, perhaps, not well judged in view of his completely even distribution. Observe that, if he held a doubleton spade and three hearts, the prospects for the slam contract would have been considerably improved.

When North apparently confirmed a fit by bidding three hearts, South proceeded to a small slam after first checking for aces and kings. West opened the queen of diamonds and the ace was played from dummy, so that declarer could try the spade finesse. When his queen held the trick, he drew two rounds of trumps, and followed up by playing the ace and another spade.

Had spades divided three-three, his troubles would have been over. If the suit was four-two, he hoped that an unobservant defender might permit him to ruff a spade with North's last trump.

East was in with the third spade, and having kept a careful count of that suit, he promptly returned the ten of hearts to prevent the spade ruff. He eventually took the setting trick with the king of spades.

As the cards lay, South can land his contract, for careful timing will enable him to ruff out his fourth spade without casualty. Inasmuch as one spade trick must be surrendered in any case, it is suggested that declarer concede a trick in the suit at once by leading a small spade at trick two, and playing the six from his hand.

South wins the return, crosses over to the ace of clubs and takes the spade finesse. When the queen holds, he now draws two rounds of trump and follows this up by cashing the ace of spades. West has no more spades, but he is also out of hearts. South, therefore, is able to trump his last spade with the seven of hearts as East helplessly follows suit. East's remaining trump is extracted a moment later.

Observe that declarer risks nothing by permitting one trump to remain outstanding while he goes about his chores in the spade suit for, if the player who has the doubleton spade also holds the third heart, then the contract is destined to fail.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1967
ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—An auspicious outlook for those who are keen of eye and willing of hand, for good efforts ably channelled. If involved in a debate with no end in sight, reevaluate, call in a disinterested party to aid.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—You may have a disagreeable disposition to deal with, or some complex situation. But your bright spirits and knowledgeability will turn things to advantage, if you remain up to standard.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Work at work time, and don't stop to contemplate when its benefits are due. Do not switch your schedule around to its detriment. But gradually give more power and concern to prime endeavors.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Surge forward confidently but not with abruptness. Speak with surety, but with tact. Presume and assume only after careful, thorough study of a subject.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Some persons may try to put over dubious schemes but the Leoite is usually above such tactics, so be careful not to fall into a trap. Some dandy advantages.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Participate in activities which are "musts" first, then you will have time for the "desirables." Just so you do not put the cart before the horse and become hopelessly confused.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Shun breakneck speed, but neither delay nor be tardy in action. Both extremes, and others MUST be curbed. Group interests, partnerships favored.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—Put past doubts, disappointments behind you; they only put limits on future success. Stress your versatility; you could add the twist now that boosts projects to success.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—This may not be a "prime" type day, but it offers some gains and much pleasure. Start with the will to make it better than ever and you will be happy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Analyses, conjectures, decisions must be given plenty of time in order to prevent errors. Be alert.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—It is not easy to heed all suggestions and directives but, with all your strength and faith, back those you know to be authoritative and timely. There is more to this day than may be apparent at first.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—A good spot for your intuitive forces, your ingenuity, acuteness and inventiveness. Do use them for sound purposes.

YOU BORN TODAY are a Gemini-Cancer couple and, as such, are endowed with the strongest traits of both Signs. You have the fine intellect, imagination and versatility of the Gemini plus the practicality, conservatism and methodicalness of the Cancerian—a potent combination. But you often lack confidence in yourself, however; become easily discouraged. You have an outstanding love of home and family, but may be too strict a parent or spouse. You would make an excellent teacher but here, again, will have to guard against becoming too stern a disciplinarian. Other lines in which you could excel: Music, the law, chemistry, medicine, politics.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

WRACKED WITH ARTHRITIS

There are several types of arthritis and many of these respond to treatment. Indomethacin, aspirin, gold salts, corticosteroids, and the anti-malarials are the most popular remedies. Rest, physical therapy, and heat and massage are used in the home and hospital. Correction of deformities via surgery is becoming a well established procedure and is recommended by many physicians. These measures sound impressive, but none offer a cure. Some have yet to be evaluated properly, especially for long term use. Arthritis is medicine's stepchild possibly because it is not a killer. We need to know more about the cause, prevention, diagnostic tests, and a cure. Less than 15 million dollars are spent annually by the government and private groups on research. The irony is that 250 million dollars are wasted on worthless and fraudulent quackery.

Arthritis is the second most prevalent chronic disorder. It affects an estimated 13 million people in the United States. Approximately 700,000 of these are unable to work, keep house, or attend school. The remainder have good and bad days with aches and pains ranging from mild to severe.

Arthritis means inflammation of a joint. Most physicians consider the condition to be a multi-faceted disease process involving the joints and surrounding tissues. This includes joint discomfort induced by injury, infection, gout, and degeneration.

Rheumatoid arthritis is the most crippling, inflammatory changes begin in the membranes lining and surrounding the joints, leading to swelling, pain, stiffness, and deformity. Remissions and flare-ups are spontaneous. When remission occurs, whatever treatment is being used at the time is given credit.

Osteoarthritis, the most common type, is due to degeneration. It is blamed on wear and tear and develops in older persons. Gout is a metabolic disorder in which crystals of uric acid are deposited in the joint. Many effective drugs are available for this condition.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

TOMORROW: Coercing the Physician.

HOT FOOD

Mrs. V. R. C. writes: I drink my coffee and eat my food real hot. Will this damage my stomach?

REPLY

Probably not. Some years ago British studies showed that hot tea often made the stomach lining congested. We do not know whether this damaged the lining any more than blushing hurts the skin.

HIP RECONSTRUCTION

T. A. writes: Is surgical reconstruction of the hips practical? Because of deterioration of both hip joints, my doctor advises me to have this operation, but I don't want to be experimented upon.

REPLY

This procedure is well established and beyond the experimental stage.

MISSING THE KEY

Capture of Jerusalem Gives Israelis Look at Old Scrolls

By LAWRENCE MALKIN, JEFFERSON (AP) — Jewish scholars are getting their first look at fragments of the Dead Sea Scrolls captured when the Israeli army took the Old City of Jerusalem last week.

They have not found the catalog, the key to the 2,000-year-old fragments.

A team of scholars led by Dr. Avraham Biran, director of the Israeli Department of Antiquities and Museums, crossed into the Old City Thursday. For the first time in 19 years they entered the Palestine Archaeological Museum in the former Jordanian sector. Some of them recognized exhibits they had arranged years before.

They found some brownish yellow scroll fragments left behind under glass in the retreat of the Jordanians. Biran said they were in good condition, but he couldn't determine exactly how many scrolls they came from or what scrolls they represented because the group did not find the museum's records.

Biran said he hopes the records are still somewhere in the fortress-like museum founded in the 1930s by John D. Rockefeller Jr. across from the Old City's north wall.

"We found some of the fragments, but not all. We know there must be more and we shall continue stocktaking. We have to look for catalogues and records," said the Israeli archaeologist, who trained under Dr. William F. Albright at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., 30 years ago. All right became known as an expert on the scrolls after their discovery in 1947.

The scrolls, found by a Bedouin shepherd following his goat into a cave near Qumran, brought much controversy among scholars with some saying the cast of the fragments of a single version of the Old Testament.

The scrolls date from about 100 B.C. to 70 A.D. They contain contemporary and sometimes differing translations of books in the Old Testament, religious commentary and the historical texts in use at the time.

Their modern history is mixed with war and intrigue. The Hebrew scholar, Dr. Eleazar Sulenik, was shown the first fragment by an Armenian antique dealer across the barbed wire separating the Jewish and Arab sectors of Jerusalem when the British still ruled here.

Suilenik bought three from a merchant in Bethlehem just as the partition line was being made permanent. After Suilenik's death in 1953, his work was taken up by his son, Gen. Yigal Yadin, who bought the other four scrolls now held by Israel after secret negotiations. Six of these are intact in a Shrine of the Book building near the Israeli museum, the seventh is on display at Expo '67 in Montreal, Canada.

The Jordanians, meanwhile, had discovered other fragments in nearby caves, and these were put in the Rockefeller Museum,

Rose Is More Than a Rose

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa., June 20 — "Rose is a rose is a rose is a rose," wrote Gertrude Stein.

But it's really not so as any visitor to the varied rose display at The Pennsylvania State University can immediately see.

Thirty-one varieties, including three 1967 All-America selections, will be blossoming here in the latter part of June and early July. The slightly later than usual blooming date is due to the fact that this is the first year for the roses in these gardens.

"Our test flower beds were only re-established on the main campus last year," explains

Robert P. Meahl, professor of ornamental horticulture who has supervised the operation since 1949. "We weren't able to put in the roses before this season."

All-America selections are tested at Penn State and in 24 other gardens across the country. Among this year's crop of winners is a hybrid tea, Mister Lincoln. It produces masses of deep, velvety red flowers, six inches wide and more.

Visitors may also admire a second hybrid tea winner called Bewitched. The large blossoms have a spicy fragrance and a clear, phlox-pink color. Another beautiful pink rose, this one a grandiflora named Lucky Lady, shares top honors.

Three hybrid teas being introduced for the first time this season are Summer Rainbow, Lady X, and Big Red. The first has large petals shaded a rich pink on the upper side, with a haze of fine chrome-yellow on the lower.

The strong-growing Lady X is distinguished by its pinkish-lavender color, while Big Red fully lives up to its name.

Two previous All-American selections also grace the gardens. American Heritage is a hybrid tea, whose flowers seem continually to change color.

SUMMER FARE

An interesting three-bean relish from pantry shelf cans to serve with frankfurters and cold cuts.

Keep Cool -- And Relish It

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE a recipe really catches on. And that's exactly what has happened to a dish called Three-Bean Relish.

In its original version the relish was made with green beans, wax beans and kidney beans — all marinated in a quite sweet oil-and-vinegar dressing. Green pepper and onion, finely cut, went in too.

Since we first encountered this relish we've tried a number of versions of it — all interesting and delicious. Here's the latest variation tested in our kitchen: it's made with green beans, kidney beans, garbanzo (ceci beans) and pimientos plus a savory dressing.

This is a great relish for year-round use; all the vegetables come from cans so the recipe is a real no-cooking pantry shelf contribution. We

GRAPEFRUIT
SHERBET REFRESHER
2 grapefruit
1/2 pint lemon sherbet
Mint sprigs

Halve grapefruit and remove fruit; drain. With kitchen scissors clip out membranes from grapefruit shells and zig-zag edges by making wide slanted cuts. Return fruit to shells; top with lemon sherbet; garnish with mint. Makes 4 servings. (Drink juice after draining fruit!)

THREE-BEAN RELISH
4 tablespoons olive oil
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
3 tablespoons onion, chopped
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 can (15-ounce) garbanzos

(ceci beans), drained and rinsed in cold water
1 can (15 ounces) red kidney beans, drained and rinsed in cold water
1 can (8 ounces) French style green beans, drained
1 jar (2 ounces) sliced pimientos

In a medium bowl, with a fork, beat together the oil, vinegar, onion, garlic, sugar, salt, oregano and pepper. Add the garbanzos, red kidney beans, green beans and pimientos; mix carefully to avoid breaking beans. Cover and chill until serving time. Makes 8 servings.

BRIDAL SHOWERS

Serve refreshing Orange Bavarian and ask friends to bring gifts suitable for making and serving desserts!

Forecast: Bridal Showers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

WANT A NEW idea for a party for the bride? Give her a Dessert Shower. Ask the guests to bring gifts appropriate for making and serving that last delicious course of a meal.

There's lots of latitude here. Call the toll: mammoth class compote; berry bowl set; cake knife or cake comb; pie server; individual dessert plates; parfait and liqueur glasses; demitasse cups and spoons; cake and pie pans or plates; a casserole or open baker for pudding; candy server; iced tea and coffee spoons; ladles (small and medium size) for serving dessert sauces. We'll stop here, but we're sure you'll have even more nominations.

For a dessert shower, you must of course serve the bride and her friends a delectable dessert. What's our suggestion? Orange Bavarian. It's really quite simple to prepare and delightfully refreshing. Just to save the cook a last-minute chore, Orange Bavarian is turned into a pretty glass serving dish so it doesn't have to be unmolded.

ORANGE BAVARIAN
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1/2 cup cold water
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, kept frozen
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Garnish

In a medium saucepan (about 2 1/2 quarts) or metal round-bottom mixing bowl, stir together the gelatin, 1/2 cup of the sugar and the salt. In a small mixing bowl, beat together the egg yolks and water until blended; stir in to gelatin mixture. Place over low heat; stir constantly around bottom and sides of pan — a rubber spatula does a good job — until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly — about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; add frozen orange juice concentrate and stir until melted. Mixture should mound slightly when dropped from a spoon. (If mixture is too runny to mound, chill for a few minutes.) In a medium mixing bowl, beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and beat until whites hold slightly curled-over peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn; gradually beat in remaining 1/4 cup sugar; continue beating if necessary until whites hold stiff straight peaks; fold into gelatin mixture; fold in whipped cream. Turn into a 2 to 2 1/2 quart serving dish. Chill until set — several hours. Garnish with extra whipped cream (sweetened to taste and vanilla-flavored) and fresh orange sections. Serve without unmolding. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

SOMETHING NEW

Here is something new in coffee that will be of interest and benefit to about 3 out of every 4 homemakers — Hills Bros' new electric perk grind coffee. It is blended, roasted and ground especially to produce the finest possible flavor and aroma with an electric percolator. It has a higher percent of coarse grind coffee which provides a better filtering system in an electric percolator and results in a better, clearer beverage. While this item is brand new, it is showing up rapidly on supermarket shelves and you will want to look for it the next time you shop. As a special invitation to try Hills Bros' Electric Perk Grind, you will find a 15 cent coupon in the ad appearing on this page.

Biscuit-Muffins Taste Mighty Good

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

OLD-TIME COOKS all over the country had a fascinating array of pans in which to bake their hot breads.

Particularly attractive were the black iron pans in the heart-and-star pattern from Pennsylvania Dutch country and those in rosette pattern from Mississippi and other southern states. Fortunately these pans are still reproduced, ready to decorate kitchens and to go into the oven holding delicious batters or doughs.

The following recipe for Raisin Biscuit-Muffins was designed to be used in modern aluminum muffin pans or in the reproductions of the heart-and-star pattern iron muffin-pan skillets. Either way it is baked, this hot bread tastes good. Its texture is an interesting cross between a biscuit and a muffin, hence its name.

RAISIN BISCUIT MUFFINS
1 1/3 cups sifted regular flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 cup commercial sour cream
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1/2 cup seedless raisins

On waxpaper sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Into a medium mixing bowl turn the brown sugar, cinnamon, sour cream, milk, melted butter and raisins; stir until sugar dissolves. Add sifted flour mixture; stir until moistened. Spoon into well-buttered muffin pans (1/3 cup capacity). Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 20 to 25 minutes. Serve at once. Makes about 10 muffins.

NOTE: This recipe may be baked in a large heart-and-star pattern iron muffin-skillet (14 3/4 by 9 by 2 inches) at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. The recipe may also be baked in the small size heart-and-star pattern iron muffin-skillet (7 by 6 by 3/8 inch) at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes; if this smaller muffin-skillet is used, spread dough level with tops of pans.

BEAR GETS RIDE

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A 200-pound bear that wandered into the Albuquerque south valley got a tramway ride into the mountains recently after a two-night stayover in the Albuquerque zoo.

The bear was tranquilized and roped when found in a residential area of the valley.

Strapped into a box under the tramway used by tourists for the ride up the west side of the Sandias, the bear was carried to about the 8,500-foot level and released in a canyon.

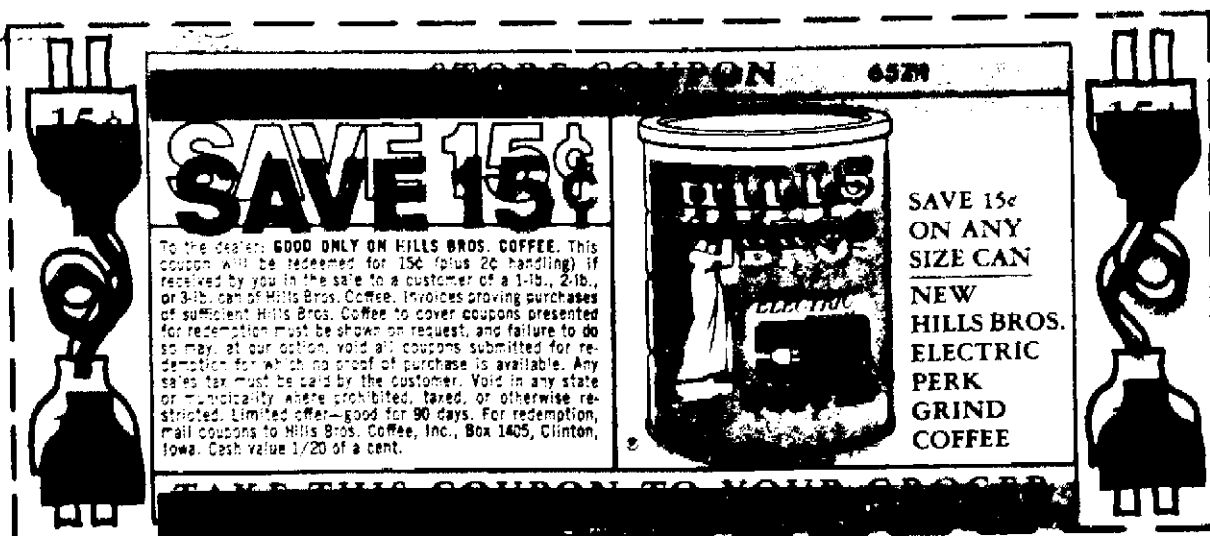

SPECIAL TREAT

Biscuit-muffins, baked in old-fashioned heart-and-star pans or in modern muffin pans, are studded with raisins and flavored with cinnamon.

Good potato, but we won't use it

This is a NO. 1 grade potato. But we won't use it for Jane Parker Potato Chips because it measures more than 4 inches in diameter. We have minimum and maximum sizes to insure the best chips... the best eating.

But size isn't the only thing we're fussy about. We'll use only certain varieties of potatoes. There are 20 or more varieties we wouldn't think of using... they just don't make good chips.

We're careful about potato sugar content. It must be low to produce chips of uniform color. We're fussy too about crispness, thickness and lots of other things.

This may seem like an awful lot of fussing, but that's the way we are about all Jane Parker products... about all the products we make.

When you think about it, shouldn't fussy A&P be your store?
